Nurture youths with high efficiency in national and regional interest

Development of a nation and its people depends on intellectuals and good morale, diligence and hard work of the individuals. Therefore the government is trying to turn out qualified human resources creating opportunities on education and health and better environment in the country.

Nowadays learning opportunities are available in rural and urban areas as the government has built educational infrastructures and modern communication networks. Higher education is now at hand for local people for there are arts and science universities, technological universities and universities of computer studies in 24-special development regions.

At a time when the government is building a new nation based on education, teachers' qualifications, teaching bent, goodwill and diligence mainly contribute towards the efforts to turn out human resource. They are to train their students constantly not only to have technology and skills but also to gain thinking power and knowledge.

It is necessary for the teachers to nurture the students to become brilliant youths with good morale and high national conviction and concept who would like to serve the interest of Myanmar society.

The teachers on their part are to participate in community welfare services such as socio-economic tasks, environmental conservation and natural disaster preparedness tasks while teaching their students higher education in the respective regions they are in.

Therefore it is the duty of teachers to nurture younger generation in accord with objective of the national education promotion programme in order to turn out human resources that possess mental prowess.

Obama orders 17,000 US troops to Afghanistan

WASHINGTON, 18 Feb—President Barack Obama, in his first major military decision, has ordered 17,000 more US troops to Afghanistan to tackle worsening insurgent violence, the White House said on Tuesday.

"This increase is necessary to stabilize a deteriorating situation in Afghanistan, which has not received the strategic attention, direction and resources it urgently requires," Obama said in a written statement.

As a presidential candidate, Obama promised to focus more attention on the war in Afghanistan, where violence has risen dramatically in the past two years as Taliban militants and other insurgents have gained strength.

"The decision was communicated to the Pentagon yesterday. The orders were signed today," White House spokesman

Robert Gibbs told reporters travelling with Obama in Denver. The 17,000 troops include an Army brigade equipped with Stryker armoured vehicles, a Marine expeditionary brigade and support personnel, officials said. The forces are part of an anticipated US troop build-up that could expand the US military presence in Afghanistan to 60,000 troops, from a current 38,000, in coming months.

Eight British men tried for alleged airline bomb plot

LONDON, 18 Feb—Eight British Muslims plotted to kill thousands of civilians by blowing up at least seven trans-Atlantic passenger planes in mid-air with home-made liquid bombs disguised as soft drinks, a prosecutor said at their trial Tuesday.

Lawyer Peter Wright said the men planned to smuggle the bomb ingredients aboard jets bound from Britain to North America disguised as "soft-drinks bottles, batteries and other innocuous items" carried in hand luggage.

"They were to be detonated in-flight by suicide bombers," including several of the accused, said Wright as he opened the case against the defendants.

Eight men aged between 22 and 30 deny conspiracy to murder. But Wright said the defendants were close to carrying out their plan when they were arrested in August 2006.

The arrests led to huge travel chaos, as hundreds of flights were grounded and thousands of people had their trips disrupted. They also triggered massive changes to airport security—including restrictions on carrying liquids on planes—that persist to this day.

Italy to increase troops in Afghanistan

ROME, 18 Feb—Italy is to increase its troops in Afghanistan in response to a call from the United States, Italian Defence Minister Ignazio La Russa said after meeting with US House of Representatives Speaker Nancy Pelosi on Tuesday.

La Russa said the number of Italian troops in Afghanistan was already being raised from some 2,300 to 2,800, and the government "might consider" asking the parliament for more reinforcements to help safeguard the Afghan elections in August.

He did not specify what that "hypothetical" number might be. La Russa echoed other ministers in noting that Italy was the third-biggest contributor to the NATO mission and called on other European Union countries to shoulder more of the burden.

Last week Italian Foreign Minister Franco Frattini said troops would go up to 2,800 and their deployment would be more flexible.

He said it was time for other major European countries to "play their part."

Stressing the need for a political solution alongside military action, Frattini underscored the importance of a conference on Afghanistan featuring all the regional players, which Italy has called as Group of Eight president. —Internet

Israel considering prisoner release for soldier

JERUSALEM, 18 Feb—Israel's Security Cabinet will consider a possible prisoner exchange with Hamas, freeing hundreds of Palestinian prisoners for a soldier captured in June 2007, an Israeli official said on Tuesday.

The top-level meeting is set for Wednesday, said government spokesman Mark Regev. He said a decision also was expected on terms of a long-term truce in Gaza after Israel's bruising offensive there last month.

On Tuesday, Prime Minister Ehud Olmert repeated his new condition that the soldier, Sgt Gilad Schalit, must be freed.

"We will negotiate his release first, and only then will we be willing to discuss things like the Gaza crossings and rebuilding the (Gaza) Strip," Olmert said during a tour of Jerusalem. Israel and Egypt clamped a blockade on Gaza after Hamas overran the crowded sliver of territory in 2007, allowing in only humanitarian supplies.

In Damascus, exiled Hamas leader Khaled Mashaal complained about Olmert's new condition.

"There can be no truce unless the (Gaza) blockade is lifted and the crossings are opened. The truce issue should not be linked to the issue of prisoner Schalit," Mashaal told reporters in Damascus after meeting with Arab League Secretary-General Amr Moussa. —Internet

Some protests set for Clinton's Indonesian visit

JAKARTA, 18 Feb—Small-scale protests were expected in Indonesia on Wednesday ahead of a visit by US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton to the world's most populous Muslim nation and Southeast Asia's biggest economy.

But the visit is generally expected to go smoothly given relatively good government-to-government relations and many Indonesians' view of Clinton's boss President Barack Obama as something of a favorite son. Clinton is due to arrive in the Indonesian capital from Japan on Wednesday afternoon on the second leg of an Asian tour also taking in South Korea and China.

The US Secretary of State called on Tuesday for coordinated action to revive the global economy at a news conference with Japanese Foreign Minister Hirofumi Nakasone.

Sudan criticizes US on Darfur

UNITED NATIONS, 18 Feb—Sudan's ambassador to the United Nations criticized the United States Tuesday for supporting possible prosecution of the country's president, even as the government takes a step toward peace in Darfur.

Ambassador Abdalmahmood Abdalhaleem Mohamed said it was "ironic" that the United States, which refused to become a party to the International Criminal Court, is now supporting its possible prosecution of Sudan's President Omar al-Bashir on genocide charges.

Mohamed spoke after Sudan's government and Darfur's most powerful rebel group agreed on Tuesday to launch negotiations on ending the six-year war in Darfur. The Sudanese government is hoping that by showing seriousness about peace, it can avert prosecution of al-Bashir by the Hague-based court on accusations he orchestrated atrocities against Darfur's ethnic Africans.

Chinese President's Africa tour gives fresh impetus to traditional friendship

BEIJING, 18 Feb—After a three-day visit to Saudi Arabia beginning 10 Feb, Chinese President Hu Jintao started an Africa tour aimed at enhancing China's friendship with developing countries in the region.

The trip, which took Hu to Mali, Senegal, Tanzania and Mauritius from 12 to 17 Feb, has given new impetus to the traditional friendship between China and Africa.

The time-honored friendship between China and Africa can be traced back to as early as the Ming Dynasty (1368-1644), when Chinese navigator Zheng He traveled to the African continent during his seven epic voyages.

In the 1960s, when most African countries launched a wave of independence struggles, late Chinese Premier Zhou Enlai had also visited Africa to express his country's staunch support for its African brothers.

The fates of the Chinese and African peoples are closely interrelated as they share a similar history and similar developmental tasks, and the two sides have carried out various forms of cooperation based on the principles of equality and mutual benefit.

Brazil to expel 98 foreign NGOs operating in the country

RIO DE JANEIRO, 18 Feb —Ninety-eight foreign Non Governmental Organizations (NGO) that failed to register with the Justice Ministry, will be forbidden from operating in Brazil, government authorities said on Tuesday.

There are 170 NGOs operating in the country but only 72 have completed the mandatory registration ahead of a 2 Feb deadline.

The measure, carried out under a ministry decree issued last year, was aimed at avoiding biopiracy, illegal exploitation of natural resources and violation of Brazil's sovereignty, especially in the Amazon Rainforest region. The government was afraid of the influence of economic and religious foreign groups in the area.

The low registration figures have confirmed the government's suspicion that many foreign NGOs operate in the country "in an obscure way," said National Justice Secretary Romeu Tuma Jr. None of the registered NGOs operates in Brazil's northern region, where the Amazon Rainforest is located.

About 36.5 percent of them operate in Sao Paulo, 20 percent in Rio, and 43.5 percent in the southern and midwestern regions.—Xinhua

Guatemala apologizes to Cuba for Bay of Pigs

HAVANA, 18 Feb—Guatemalan President Alvaro Colom apologized to Cuba on Tuesday for his country's having allowed the CIA to train exiles in the Central American country for the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion.

"Today I want to ask Cuba's forgiveness for having offered our country, our territory, to prepare an invasion of Cuba," Colom said during a speech at the University of Havana. "It wasn't us, but it was our territory."

He added that he wished to apologize "as president and head of state, and as commander in chief of the Guatemalan army."

About 1,500 Cuban exiles trained under CIA guidance in Guatemala before invading the island beginning 17 April, 1961, in an unsuccessful bid to overthrow Fidel Castro's communist gov-

The invasion ended after less than three days, with about 100 invaders killed and more than 1,000 captured by Cuban forces.

Colom, whose government is considered center-leftist, said he was asking Cuba's forgiveness as "a sign of solidarity and that times are changing," and to "re-affirm my idea that Latin America is changing."—Internet

GM seeks up to $30 in aid, to cut 47,000 jobs

DETROIT, 18 Feb—General Motors Corp, presenting a dire outlook for the future, said Tuesday it may need $30 billion in total government financing to weather the economic downturn and would cut 47,000 jobs worldwide and shutter five more US factories in a massive restructuring plan.

The automaker is already surviving on $13.4 billion in federal loans and said in a plan submitted to the Treasury Department that it would seek an additional $16.6 billion if economic conditions worsen, but it could achieve profitability in two years and fully repay its loans by 2017.

The US automaker presented its turnaround plan to the Obama administration as it worked to win concessions from the United Auto Workers union and bondholders to dramatically resize the company.

The UAW said it reached a tentative deal with GM, Chrysler LLC and Ford Motor Co on contract changes but discussions were still under way about how the companies would fund union-run trust funds that will take over the companies' retiree health care obligations starting next year.

GM said it was making progress but had not yet achieved all the concessions from union workers, debt holders, dealers and suppliers that the Bush administration sought in the loan terms provided last December.

US general wants troop cut plans in Europe dropped

WASHINGTON, 18 Feb—The US Army's commander in Europe said on Tuesday plans to cut the number of American troops on the continent should be scrapped because the current force size was needed to conduct training exercises with allies.

General Carter Ham, the head of US Army Europe, said two brigades based in Germany should remain there rather than move to the United States in 2012 and 2013 as planned. That would keep about 42,000 US soldiers based in Europe.

Ham said he had recommended the change of plans to General John Craddock, the head of US European Command and NATO's Supreme Allied Commander. Any decision to cancel the move would ultimately come from the Pentagon.

Oil stays below $35 after big drop overnight

SINGAPORE, 18 Feb—Oil prices languished below $35 a barrel on Wednesday in Asia as further signs the US recession is deepening spurred investor concern over crude demand.

Investors are doubting whether a $787 billion stimulus bill, signed Tuesday by President Barack Obama, will be enough to jolt the US out of its worst recession in decades.

General Motors Corp and Chrysler LLC asked the government Tuesday for an additional $14 billion in aid. GM presented a survival plan that also calls for cutting a total of 47,000 jobs globally and Chrysler said it will cut 3,000 more jobs.—Internet

Oil slick drifting to Irish coast

LONDON, 18 Feb — A large fuel oil slick thought to have leaked into the Celtic Sea during a Russian refuelling incident is heading to the coasts of Ireland and Wales. The UK coastguard estimates up to 1,000 tonnes may be on the water, but Russia denies the spill is on that scale.

Irish coastguards said the spill, 50 miles (80km) off of west Cork, covered 2.8 miles by 3.1 miles around a Russian aircraft carrier and a tanker. It was first spotted by aerial pollution surveillance on 14 February.

Samples from the spill have been taken for analysis, the Irish coastguard said, and the Russian Embassy has been asked by the Irish government to supply data about oil on its ships.

Aerial monitoring was still being carried out by Irish and British maritime agencies, reports said. The Russian navy said it was carrying out an internal investigation, but could not confirm how the oil came to surround its vessels or whether its refuelling operations had caused the spill.

There are two refuelling tankers, one aircraft carrier, one Russian tug, a Russian destroyer, a British destroyer and an Irish naval vessel in the area. The Irish coastguard said the slick was breaking up and was spreading over a larger area and moving eastwards about 30 to 40 miles off the coast. —Internet

Unexploded bombs go missing in Gaza Strip

JERUSALEM, 18 Feb — Unexploded bombs dropped on the Gaza Strip during the Israeli offensive have disappeared from a storage site in the Palestinian territory, a UN spokesman said on Tuesday.

Israel said it suspected

Hamas, the Islamist group which controls Gaza, took them. Three 2,000 pound bombs (about 1 tonne) and eight 500 pound bombs (about 250 kg) that had been collected by international bomb disposal experts were taken from a Hamas police post in Gaza City.

It was not known where they were and the United Nations was trying to find them, UN spokesman Richard Miron said. "It's clearly extremely dangerous and needs to be disposed of in a safe manner," he said. A Hamas police official declined to comment. The Islamist Hamas faction took control of the Gaza Strip from Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas's Fatah faction in a takeover in 2007 after winning elections.

During its 22-day offensive against Gaza militants that ended on 18 January, Israel launched thousands of rockets, bombs and shells from the ground, air and sea on Gaza. Some 1,300 Palestinians and 14 Israelis died during the fighting.

Man sentenced for planting syringe in potato chips

A 35-year-old man was sentenced to five years of probation for planting a syringe in a bag of potato chips. The man pleaded guilty in November to tampering with a consumer product. A federal judge ordered him not to contact Frito-Lay Corp during his probation.

The man originally told the company last year that he noticed a funny taste while eating chips and found a syringe in the bag. Food and Drug Administration investigators later determined he and a friend had conspired to extort money from Frito-Lay by planting the syringe, which his friend had used to inject crack cocaine.

Really, we the people are pleased with the thought that we will have to wait just one year to 2010. Our thought is that next year, our country will see multiparty democracy general elections to which the entire people are looking forward, thereafter there will emerge people's representatives. Then, there will be hluttaws (parliament) in accordance with the State Constitution. By then, our country will be able to set its foot in democracy we have been waiting for ages.

In spite of the people awaiting with much expectation, anti-government groups are getting louder in their protest at democratic transition. I think they even cannot stand the thought that they are going to face the public decisions in 2010.

NLD issued the so-called special announcement 1/01/09 on 4 January. According to the resolutions passed at the CEC meeting held on 1 January 2009, NLD and seven other parties demanded that all the political prisoners including Daw Suu Kyi be released unconditionally as soon as possible. Shortly after that, they issued announcement 2/01/09 urging the people to support their announcement 1/01/09. They have been opposing and having a go at the government in their own party's interest. But, I noticed that they have come to deceive the people into supporting them.

I have no idea about the directives and arrangements of the NLD CEC, but I noticed that the woman secretary of Meiktila District NLD in an interview by the BBC said, "We are now collecting the signatures to comply with the directive of the headquarters." It was merely an attempt to revive the Signature Campaign launched by Min Ko Naing and group. In their bid to attract public support for their party's announcement, they tried to mislead the people into misunderstanding the government, pointing out the shortage of electric power and water supply, instead of following an honest way.

The woman said, "We local people of Meiktila demand, putting our signatures at the end of the letter that we should be provided with enough electricity and safe water, the most fundamental requirements. In this case, we have written that we suggest that the government should do something to supply electricity and safe water for us, and we put our signatures at the end of the letter." It is vividly clear that there is not even a grain of truth in what she said. They are used to telling lies, exaggerating the situations and making a mountain out of a molehill. Their demand carries their implicit hopes that after the demand more people may come to support them, and a large number of people may sign the letter, and one day they may organize the people into a mass demonstration they target.

Regarding the party, at the press conference of National Unity Party to mark the 62nd Union Day, Joint-General Secretary U Khin Maung Gyi disclosed his views that a powerful party was taking direct organizing measures to attract the public support by issuing a variety of public requests; that in 2009, they had plotted many conspiracies to incite riots; that they were organizing the people both directly and indirectly; that they had many clandestine schemes to hinder the nation and the people from carrying out the tasks to restore peace and stability and achieve economic and social development; and that in that regard, certain countries were trying to interfere in the affairs, and aiding and abetting the party.

He said that he had learnt that the party had split into two factions: the one that wants to work in a moderate, fair way and prioritize national interest, and the other with left-wing attitude. The latter was arousing emotional feelings of the people to take to the streets and create riots if there was a mass protest in the nation in 2009; that the countries concerned were providing funds and other aids for the party; and that parties should give priority to national interests, rather than that of their own.

He added that the people were upset because the party was playing a political game without claiming whether it would stand for election or not; that the people would make decisions in the elections; that if it dealt a serious blow to the elections, that would be against the public desire; and that if they wanted to do as said by Communists to demolish first, then build a new one, that would also get the people upset.

In my opinion, there was no exaggeration in his words. And he is the joint-general secretary of a prestigious party, so he did not use any harsh words in his speech. Frankly speaking, there were many points about NLD he did not mention. Now, the people have realized the attitude of the party. Some persist in cheering the party due to personality cult and party attachment, whereas so many people no longer support the party because they have understood well the party's innate nature.

NLD will not hesitate even at the slight degree to do everything evil to come to power. What is always on its mind is 'power'. If necessary, it is very ready to deceive the people who will decide on its future. It harshly criticized the National Convention in which more than 1000 delegates of the people held discussions actively to adopt principles. It also shows disregard to the public decisions, saying it does not accept or recognize the State Constitution that has been approved with the support of 92.48 per cent of the voters, and it will have to re-write and amend the constitution. In addition, it said that it took no interest in the 2010 elections. Playing a game for political gains, it said that it would not stand, then it said it would stand for election. Then, it said that it would have to consider whether it would stand for election or not.

Again, it is persuading the people to provide it with their signatures in its demand for release of political prisoners. The people are not interested at all in mass riots, demonstrations and political campaigns. If it keeps on doing the something, NLD will lose all the support of the people.

VOA said that a Signature Campaign was in progress at NLD Headquarters for release of political prisoners; and that among those who had put their signatures were some diplomats from the embassies of the US, UK, France, Germany and Italy to Myanmar. However it is, today's people will not get involved in the campaign. The incidents are still fresh in their minds that the nation faced instability due to some persons who had been caught in its snare of instigation and incitement. The people have realized that they have to prevent their children and relatives from getting involved in such pointless incidents.

Meiktila NLD is attempting to make small matters grow into riots. In fact, there is no particular weakness of the ruling government it can point out, so it is trying to provoke public outrage through the issues of shortage of electricity and water supply. However, the government has never ignored supply of water and electricity to the people. Present projects are tangible evidences in that regard. The people have understood and accepted it. So, I would like to present some projects with exact data and figures for the knowledge of all anti-government groups including Meiktila NLD.

Regarding irrigation water supply, our country has placed emphasis on irrigation water necessary for boosting cultivation capacity and ensuring cultivation of crops all-year round. Up to January 2009, the number of irrigation facilities rose to 356 from 138 in 1988, accounting for progress of 218. The new facilities benefit 2.78 million acres (1.13 million hectares) of farmlands.

And during the same period, the number of river water pumping stations has surged to 322 from only 4. They irrigate 500,000 acres (2.02 million hectares) of farmlands. Furthermore, the government has sunk 4893 tube-wells and 2973 hand pumps, totaling 7876. The facilities benefit 96,000 acres (38851 hectares) of farmlands.

In some dam projects, irrigation systems are ongoing. So, the government is working hard to complete them by this financial year to benefit 0.189 million acres (0.0765 million hectares) of arable lands. Simultaneously, it is speeding up construction of river water pumping stations and underground water tapping stations. Therefore, farmers will be able to grow more acres of lands and boost per acre yield of their crops. About 1.8 times of the turnover of agricultural produce is on target for 2008-2009 with the aim of increasing the per capita income of rural people.

In Mandalay Division alone, during the period between 1988 and today, the government has constructed 52 irrigation facilities that add to the total number to 113. Moreover, seven dams are under construction and 10 more projects are due to be implemented soon. Meiktila has got several new large dams such as Nyaunggon, Letkhokpin, and Shanmange.

Apart from them, the government is implementing an underground water tapping project in Meiktila District, an arid region, in case it may have its crops unsuccessful due to climate changes. The feasibility study proved possible to tap underground water on a large scale in Meiktila and Thazi townships. So, the project will soon be put into action. The two townships have deposits of 70,000 acre feet of water and 800 tube-wells will be sunk at an estimated cost of 271.26 million kyats. And the project will be able to benefit some 11,000 acres of farmlands. It will ensure safety of irrigation supply, will supply irrigation water when the regions' rainwater is less than usual, and will benefit the region's greening programme. These are the projects the government is implementing for adequate supply of water.

TOKYO, 18 Feb—Japan plans to issue national residence cards to foreigners living in the country to make staying illegally more difficult.

A revision of the Immigration Control and Registration law has been drafted, The Yomiuri Shimbun reported. The government plans to submit it for a vote during the current session of the Diet, Japan's parliament. The law would abolish municipal registration cards, substituting ones issued by the Justice Department. People caught forging or changing the new cards would face prosecution and prison terms. French 'spider-man' scales Hong Kong skyscraper in latest stunt

HONG KONG, 18 Feb — A French daredevil scaled a 73-story Hong Kong skyscraper barehanded Tuesday, his latest attempt to draw attention to global warming by climbing up the world's tallest buildings.

Alain Robert, dubbed the French spider-man, has scaled dozens of tall structures without ropes or harnesses, including the Eiffel Tower in Paris, the Empire State Building in New York and Malaysia's Petronas Towers in Kuala Lumpur. It took Robert about 40 minutes Tuesday to scramble up the downtown Cheung Kong Center — the flagship building of Hong Kong's richest man, Li Ka-shing. Upon reaching the top of the 885.83-foot building, Robert waved to a crowd of spectators on the ground below.—Internet

Green vehicles subsidized in Chinese cities

BEIJING, 18 Feb—The Chinese government has launched a pilot programme to subsidize energy-efficient and new-energy vehicles in the public transport sector in 13 cities, the Ministry of Finance (MOF) said on Tuesday in a statement.

The ministry said the subsidies would mainly go to 10-meter-long, or above, buses.

The statement was a supplement to an earlier joint statement by the MOF and the Ministry of Science and Technology in January, which said the central government would offer a one-off subsidy for the purchase of mixed-power, electric and fuel-cell vehicles.

The MOF said on Tuesday that mixed-power passenger cars would be given subsidies up to 420,000 yuan (61,435 US dollars) each, and electric and fuel-cell vehicles would get subsidies of 500,000 yuan and 600,000 yuan each, respectively.

Mobiles to have same charging socket by 2012

BARCELONA, 18 Feb—Key mobile phone industry players have agreed to fit phones with the same power socket by 2012, industry group GSMA said on Tuesday. It said handsets would have a micro USB interface, already used to transfer pictures from digital cameras to a computer.

The initial group of companies that have signed for the change include Nokia, LG, Motorola, Samsung and Sony Ericsson. Operators such as AT&T, Orange, Telefonica, T-Mobile and Vodafone are also part of the initiative.

The GSMA said that eventually it expected mobile phones to ship without a charging plug and cable because everybody would have one. This should also lead to less waste and could yield energy savings because the agreement calls for chargers to meet efficiency targets, the group said.

China plans to launch 3rd ocean survey satellite in 2010

BEIJING, 18 Feb—China plans to launch a third ocean survey satellite in 2010 to upgrade its capacity for maritime weather forecasting and disaster relief, according to a report in the Science and Technology Daily on Wednesday.

The newspaper is an official publication of the Ministry of Science and Technology.

The satellite, Haiyang-2A, an ocean dynamic environmental satellite, will be used to monitor ocean wind fields, sea levels and temperatures, Jiang Xingwei, an official with the National Marine Environment Forecast Center, was quoted as saying.

China plans to have a system consisting of ocean color remote sensing satellites, ocean dynamic environment satellites and ocean surveillance satellites.

The colour remote sensing satellites (Haiyang-1 series) use infrared remote sensing technology to monitor ocean pollution and topography in shallow waters. The dynamic environment satellites (Haiyang-2 series) use microwave remote sensing technology to monitor ocean wind fields and ocean surface temperatures.

The ocean surveillance satellites (Haiyang-3 series) will have the combined features of the previous two series.

China started to develop ocean dynamic environment satellite in 2007, the newspaper said.

China launched its first ocean survey satellite, Haiyang-1A, in May 2002. In April 2007, the second ocean survey satellite, Haiyang-1B, was launched. Both were ocean colour remote sensing satellites. —Internet

Chipmakers pin hopes on mobiles

BARCELONA, 18 Feb—Global chipmakers, battling slower technology demand, are betting size matters as they pin their hopes for future growth on small and easy to carry mobile devices such as netbooks and smartphones. Global shipments of personal computer processors fell more than 11 percent in the fourth quarter but netbook sales are expected to more than double this year to about 35 million units, according to analysts.

Intel, the world's biggest chipmaker, expects to sell at least 50 percent more of its Atom chips for netbooks and other mobile Internet devices this year than it did in 2008, Anand Chandrasekher, head of Intel's ultra-mobility group, said on Tuesday at the Mobile World Congress in Barcelona. Intel's revenues from Atom chips, which cater for a new and fast-growing market, rose

50 percent to $300 million (211 million pounds) in the fourth quarter. Overall company sales fell 23 percent to $82 billion as the chip industry struggles through the downturn. —Internet

Pet chimpanzee shot after mauling US woman

A chimpanzee mauled a woman's face. —INTERNET

STAMFORD, 18 Feb—A 175-pound pet chimpanzee has been shot dead by police after it mauled a woman in the US. The victim, said to be in her 50s, suffered serious facial injuries and was taken to hospital in Stamford, Connecticut. Stamford police Lieutenant

Richard Conklin told reporters the woman, who was visiting a friend, was attacked for no apparent reason when she got out of her car. Sandra Herold, the owner of the 15-year-old chimp called Travis, wrestled with the animal as he mauled her friend, then ran inside her house to raise the alarm.

"She retrieved a large butcher knife and stabbed her long-time pet numerous times in an effort to save her friend, who was really being brutally attacked," Lt Conklin said. The victim suffered "a tremendous loss of blood", he added. The ape had started roaming around the vicinity when emergency crews arrived. —Internet

Boy's body found in crocodile

Crocodiles in Australia can be destroyed if they are a threat to humans. —INTERNET

CAMBERRA, 18 Feb—The remains of a five-year-old Australian boy have been found in the stomach of a crocodile, police say. Jeremy Doble was last seen on 8 February playing near his family's home beside a flooded mangrove swamp in northern Queensland.

Police now say he was attacked and eaten by a 14ft (4.3m) crocodile who was then trapped in a floodplain river. The announcement came after police examined the crocodile, using non-lethal surgical procedure.

"The family have requested that media respect their privacy at this time," police said in a statement.

Queensland officials say the animal will now be sent to a crocodile farm or zoo. The victim's parents have reportedly asked authorities not to kill the crocodile. —Internet

Study raises hopes of anthrax vaccine pill

LONDON, 18 Feb—An oral vaccine packed into bacteria found in dairy products like milk and cheese protected mice from the anthrax bacteria, suggesting a pill could replace injections for humans, researchers said on Monday.

"Normally, you can't eat vaccines because the digestive process in the stomach destroys them, so vaccines are administered by needle," Todd Klaenhammer, a researcher at North Carolina State University in the United States who co-led the study, said in a statement. "Using 'food grade' lactic acid bacteria as a vehicle provides a safe way of getting the vaccine into the small intestine without losing any of the drug's efficacy," he said.

The study, which included scientists from the US Army Medical Research of Infectious Diseases, was published in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. Anthrax is a fairly common bacteria whose spores can be used as a biological weapon. Usually it causes an easily treated skin lesion. But if inhaled, it can take hold quickly and by the time a person starts showing symptoms, it is usually too late for successful treatment with antibiotics.

Earlier this month, Human Genome Sciences Inc said it would provide an initial 20,000 doses of ABthrax, which fights anthrax infection, to the US government. US based Emergent BioSolutions also produces a vaccine.

Real's Robben has old scores to settle with Liverpool

MADRID, 18 Feb—Real Madrid winger Arjen Robben said on Tuesday he had some old scores to settle with Liverpool when they meet in the Champions League first knockout round next week. "I want to beat Liverpool because I've lost against them twice in the semi-finals," Robben told Radio Marca. "Also Reina saved a penalty of mine and I would like to take another and score this time."

Robben was at Chelsea when Liverpool beat them on the way to the European Cup final in 2005 and 2007. Two years ago, the match went to penalties after the tie ended 1-1 on aggregate, and Reina saved from Robben and Geremi as Liverpool took the shootout 4-1 at Anfield.

Eduardo's dream return comes at right time for Arsenal

LONDON, 18 Feb—Eduardo's dream return to the Arsenal first team after his horrific leg break has given manager Arsene Wenger new attacking options as he seeks to lift their Premier League campaign. The Brazilian-born Croatia striker scored twice in Monday's 4-0 victory over Cardiff City in the FA Cup fourth round, marking his first match for the club in almost a year in style.

"It was the best day of my life because it proved I can play again," local media quoted Eduardo as saying. "It was a special moment to score and very emotional. I had tears in my eyes. I celebrated by kissing my wedding ring because my wife, Andreja, daughter Lorena and family supported me right through it."

Wenger, whose side are fifth in the league, 12 points behind leaders Manchester United, said Eduardo's return gave him new possibilities as they try to close the gap in the league and progress in the Champions League and FA Cup. "We'll know at the end of the season how important it (his comeback) is, but I'm very happy to have him back," said the Frenchman. "He can play as a striker, on the flank, behind the striker, up front on his own. That is important for us." — Internet

Serra upsets ailing Soderling at Memphis

MEMPHIS, 18 Feb—Frenchman Florent Serra withstood 20 aces to upset fourth seeded and two-times finalist Robin Soderling of Sweden 6-4 6-7 6-2 in the opening round of the Memphis Championships on Tuesday. "It's a good victory indoors, (against) one of the best players on indoor courts," Serra told reporters. "I'm very happy because it's an important tournament here. I have to continue to play like this and play relaxed."

Soderling played with an ailing back and needed a trainer before the start of the third set. The timeout helped Serra calm himself after the second set loss. "It was a very difficult first-round match for me," Serra said. "He served very, very strong. But I hit the ball very well."

Beckham decision could come Friday

Milan flew out for Wednesday's UEFA Cup clash at Werder Bremen. "The wish of the player is to stay, we will see how the situation evolves." The midfielder, on a two-month loan at Milan from Los Angeles Galaxy, wants to remain in Italy permanently after impressive performances in Serie A helped him win back a place in the England squad.

Galaxy said Friday he must go back to Los Angeles on March 9 after a Major League Soccer deadline to complete the transfer passed. However, Milan are still confident of reaching a deal when talks resume towards the end of the week.

Various figures have been bandied about in the media after Milan's opening offer of five million euros (4.4 million pounds) was turned down. Some reports have said Galaxy want about 12 million while Milan are only willing to go to eight or even 10. —Internet

Milan's Nesta to undergo further back surgery

MILAN, 18 Feb—Injury-plagued AC Milan defender Alessandro Nesta will undergo another back operation on Tuesday to try to save his career.

The former Italy international, 32, has not played this season having managed 29 league games last term and just 14 the season before with continuing niggles. AC Milan announces that Alessandro Nesta will go under the knife tomorrow morning, the Serie A club said in a statement on Monday.

Milan had hoped a rehabilitation stint in the United States had cured his back problems but he broke down again last week. David Beckham, who limped out of Sunday's 2-1 defeat by Inter Milan with a calf injury, has been named in the squad for Wednesday's UEFA Cup last 32 first leg at Werder Bremen but Kaka is again out with a foot problem.

Hiddink could turn to Chelsea's youngsters

LONDON, 18 Feb—Chelsea coach Guus Hiddink said he could turn to promising young players to get the London club's Premier League title challenge back on track. Hiddink, who transformed a drab Russia team into an exciting one that reached the Euro 2008 semi-finals by bringing in inexperienced young players, hinted he could draw on that successful tactic during his temporary spell at Stamford Bridge. "Even if you are a big club ... you will always create some space for youngsters," he told Sky Sports News.

"There are always promising youngsters and that's why we have to keep an eye on them. If they have the quality to come in, we don't hesitate to (bring them in)." Hiddink, appointed to manage the London club until the end of the season after last week's sacking of Luiz Felipe Scolari, watched his reserves beat Portsmouth reserves 6-0 on Monday in the company of club owner Roman Abramovich. —Internet

Adriano escapes punishment for derby handball goal

MILAN, 18 Feb—Inter Milan striker Adriano has escaped a possible two-game ban after scoring the opener with his arm in Sunday's 2-1 win over AC Milan. There was insufficient proof that the Brazilian had deliberately intended to commit a handball, the Italian league's disciplinary unit said in a statement on Tuesday after reviewing video evidence.

The ball came off his head and then hit his arm before flying into the net in the 28th minute following Maicon's cross. A similar incident happened in October when Fiorentina's Alberto Gilardino was banned for two games after it was decided he had deliberately used an arm to score in a 3-1 win at Palermo. Sunday's tight win moved Inter nine points clear at the top of Serie A and left third-placed Milan 11 adrift and virtually out of the title race. Inter President Massimo Moratti has said the champions would have won anyway despite the handball but Milan coach Carlo Ancelotti said the incident had been crucial. —Internet

Kaka wants Beckham stay

MILAN, 18 Feb —AC Milan star Kaka has urged the club to push through a deal to keep David Beckham at the San Siro.

Beckham is currently on loan at the Serie A giants but is due to return to parent club Los Angeles Galaxy on 9th March.

Milan have so failed to agree a deal to sign Beckham with the MLS club expecting the midfielder to report back to America next month.

Beckham remains hopeful a deal can be thrashed out and Kaka believes the former Manchester United and Real Madrid man has established himself as a key member of the Milan side. Kaka admits the initial move for Beckham may have been motivated for marketing, but he insists the player has won everyone over at Milan.

“Maybe it was a marketing move at first,” Kaka told SportTV. “But today the truth is that he is fundamental. He is a player that in the last games was very decisive, with passes and goals.”
