Safe drinking water available in rural areas

The government is building infrastructures fulfilling education, health and economic needs to develop rural areas of the country where the majority of the people live. As a result, transport has become smooth and urban and rural areas have gradually developed.

Supply of safe water is one of the five rural region development tasks being carried out. The 10-year safe water supply project is being implemented from 2000-2001 to 2009-2010.

In the past there were some difficulties for the supply of drinking water in Sagaing, Magway and Mandalay Divisions in central Myanmar as they are in the arid zone. There was insufficient water in 8,042 villages in the zone and scarcity of water in 15,183 villages in other states and divisions.

Safe water is now available in 8,039 villages in three divisions in the arid zone and 13,626 villages in other states and divisions due to the government's effective implementation of safe drinking water supply project in those regions.

Fulfilling safe drinking water for the people is a noble deed. Such project is being implemented with the contribution of the wellwishers, social organizations, internal and external organizations and the government.

Supply of safe drinking water in the areas where water is scarce makes the local people free from diseases and other social evils and it also contributes to personal and environment hygiene.

It is necessary to continue to make efforts for supply of water with the contribution of the wellwishers and the government's goodwill. By doing so, the number of villages with adequate supply of water will increase more and more.

US soldier guilty of murder in deaths of four Iraqis VILSECK, 21 Feb — A US Army medic was convicted of murder Friday for his involvement in the execution-style slayings of four bound and blindfolded Iraqi detainees shot in the back of the head in the spring of 2007. The court sentenced him to life in prison.

Sgt Michael Leahy Jr was found guilty on charges of murder and conspiracy to commit murder by the nine-person jury who had heard testimony about the killings at the court-martial at the Army's Rose Barracks Courthouse since Wednesday.

After a sentencing hearing, Leahy received a life sentence, with the possibility of parole. He also will have his rank reduced to private, his pay forfeited and be dishonorably discharged.

"Looking back at the canal, I see it was the wrong thing to do," Leahy read from a statement to the court before he was sentenced. "Please see that I'm not a bad person, that I made a bad mistake. I want to move on."

Leahy, 28, was acquitted of murder in a separate incident involving the death of another Iraqi in January 2007. Wearing his dress uniform, he sat impassively as the verdicts were handed down by the foreman of the jury made up of officers and enlisted personnel.—Internet

Taleban bombs made with British electronics

LONDON, 21 Feb — Some roadside bombs used by the Taleban in Afghanistan include electronic parts that originally came from Britain and were supplied by British Muslims, the Daily Telegraph reported Saturday.

According to the newspaper, which did not cite its source, the devices, which were used to activate bombs via remote control, were either sent to sympathisers in neighbouring countries or carried in by volunteers who flew to Pakistan and crossed the border into Afghanistan.

It reported that an explosives officer told Foreign Secretary David Miliband of the findings while the minister was in Afghanistan on a two-day visit this past week.

"We have found electronic components in devices used to target British troops that originally come from Britain," the unnamed officer told Miliband during a briefing.—Internet

Three foreign troops killed in Afghanistan

KABUL, 21 Feb — Three soldiers in the US-led coalition helping to fight a Taleban-led insurgency in southern Afghanistan have died after their patrol was hit by a bomb, according to the US military.

The three were killed on Friday in the southern province of Uruzgan, it said in a statement. It did not give their nationalities. "Three coalition service members died of wounds sustained from an improvised explosive device during a combat reconnaissance patrol in the Uruzgan Province, Friday," it said.

Anti-US Iraqi cleric facing leadership challenge

BAGHDAD, 21 Feb — The firebrand anti-American cleric whose militia battled US troops for years is facing a strong challenge for leadership of Iraq's poor, urban Shiites from a small, well-organized faction with loose links to Iran, senior figures within his movement say. The split within Muqtada al-Sadr's organization has widened as Shiite groups weigh the outcome of last month's provincial elections and prepare for a national ballot this year that will determine the leadership in Baghdad.

The dissident faction is expected to mount a campaign to become a rival force appealing to al-Sadr's base among poor Shiites, senior officials close to the cleric said in interviews this week. This would offer greater openings for Teheran's influence in Iraq and give political cover to the so-called "special groups" of Sadrist that have continued attacks on US-led forces.

GM shares hit 74-year low

NEW YORK, 21 Feb—General Motors Corp shares on Friday tumbled to their lowest level in more than 70 years, pulled down by a drop in the broader markets and continued speculation about the future of the struggling automaker.

GM shares hit a low of $1.52 in early afternoon trading, before rebounding somewhat to close down 23 cents, or 11.5 percent, at $1.77. The low matched a record set on 26 July, 1934, according to the Center for Research in Security Prices at the University of Chicago. The price is adjusted for splits and other changes.

The Detroit-based automaker's shares have been battered over the past year by worries about the viability of the US auto industry and plunging sales stemming from the industrywide drop in demand for new vehicles.

GM shares were worth $3.50 just a month ago and $25.54 a year ago. On Tuesday, GM said it would need a total of $30 billion in federal aid in order to avoid filing for bankruptcy protection, up from a previous estimate of $18 billion and including $13.4 billion it has already received. It also said it would need to cut 47,000 jobs worldwide and close five more US factories.—Internet

Japan's Sharp to make LCD panels in China

TOKYO, 21 Feb — Japan's Sharp Corp plans to produce liquid crystal display (LCD) panels in China through a partnership with a major Chinese electronics manufacturer, according to the Nikkei daily.

Sharp, the world's fifth-largest LCD panel producer, hopes to reach a deal with China's SVA Group this spring, the business daily said.

The electronics giant has been hit by the global slowdown and by the yen's rise against the dollar, which has made exporting panels to LCD television plants around the world less profitable.

The Japanese firm has said it expects its first-ever operating loss this year and will cut 1,500 jobs as revenues from high-end televisions plummet.

Sharp now intends to focus on producing panels using cutting-edge technologies at home while making older-generation panels abroad by joining forces with major foreign firms, Nikkei said.—Internet

Iran hails military ties with Russia

MOSCOW, 21 Feb—Iran's defence minister said on Friday he hopes to obtain new weapons from Russia to upgrade the nation's arsenals.

Iran has relied on Russian military assistance in the past and hopes to continue doing so, Mostafa Mohammed Najjar said.

"Russia has advanced military technologies, we have used them and plan to keep using them," he said at a news conference.

Najjar wouldn't elaborate on what specific weapons Iran was seeking. He met with his Russian counterpart and toured some Russians weapons plants during his five-day visit that began Monday.

Moscow has developed close ties with Teheran and is building its first nuclear power plant.

Russia also has supplied weapons to Iran, including Tor-M1 air-defence missiles, despite US and Israeli complaints. However, Russian officials have rejected claims that they have provided Iran with more powerful, long-range S-300 air defence missile systems.

Supplying the S-300s to Iran would markedly change the military balance in the Middle East and the issue has been the subject of intense speculation and diplomatic wrangling for months.

Suspect in Indiana police shooting found dead

LOUISVILLE, 21 Feb—A man suspected of shooting two Indiana police officers in an ambush was found dead of a self-inflicted gunshot on Friday night, hours after he had barricaded himself in a Louisville house.

Negotiators tried all day to end the standoff peacefully, but the suspect was found dead at 8:45 pm after he shot himself, said Louisville Metro Police spokesman Robert Biven. Police had deployed gas inside the house around that time, Biven said.

Police had earlier said the suspect in the house was Robert Datillo, 37, of Jeffersonville, Ind. Datillo was wanted by investigators probing the shootings of the officers at a motel Thursday in southern Indiana, just across the Ohio River from Louisville. Both officers were in stable condition Friday.

"It's always to our interests to have the person come out. Unfortunately this person decided to take his own life," Biven said.

Police in Celle say the 18-year-old stole a small light tank early Friday and rumbled out of his base toward nearby Bergen — but drove off the road after 500 yards (meters).

Undaunted, he walked back to his base and commandeered a second armoured vehicle just like the first. This time, he was spotted by a British military police patrol. As the patrol tried to stop him, he lost control and drove into a tree. Military police then arrested him.

NASA postpones space shuttle Discovery's launch for fourth time

WASHINGTON, 21 Feb—NASA has delayed the launch of the space shuttle Discovery for a fourth time amidst concerns about valves.

After meeting all Friday at Kennedy Space Center in Florida, shuttle managers decided against launching in a week. The launch date for Discovery currently is "under review," NASA said in a statement. The launch had been targeted for no sooner than 27 Feb.

Three valves in each shuttle channel hydrogen gas from the main engines to the external fuel tank. Discovery's valves were removed, inspected and reinstalled as a precaution after one valve on the shuttle Endeavor broke during its November mission.

Managers want to make sure if that happens again, the shuttle and its seven-man crew would be safe.

Discovery's latest mission to the International Space Station originally had been scheduled for 12 Feb.

During a review of Discovery's readiness for flight, NASA managers decided 3 Feb to plan a launch no earlier than 19 Feb.

Israel fires flare shells over Lebanon to look for its missing soldier

BEIRUT, 20 Feb—Israel fired flare lighting shells Friday night off the Lebanese coast and over South Lebanon's border town of Nakoura in search of its missing soldier, Al-Arabia TV reported.

Yasmina Bouziane, a spokeswoman for the UN Interim Forces in Lebanon (UNIFIL) was quoted as confirming that she acknowledged that Israel fires flare shells 4-6 km off the Lebanese coast and over Nakoura where UNIFIL headquarter is located. However, the spokeswoman told a radio that UNIFIL "has no information about the disappearance of an Israeli soldier."

There has been conflicting reports over the disappearance of the Israeli soldier.

Al-Arabia TV reported earlier on Friday night that the soldier disappeared while doing physical exercises near the borders with Lebanon.

But its reporter said later that the soldier was doing his exercise off Haifa shore where he drawn and was driven away by the wind, adding Israeli forces were looking for him along the shore reaching South Lebanon.

Earlier, Lebanon's ANB TV reported that Israel informed the UNIFIL command that an Israeli boat was missing in the sea. The accident has raised fear of an operation carried out by Hezbollah in revenge of the assassination of its commander Imad Mughniyeh, as Hezbollah Chief Hasan Nasrallah promised.

Opel needs around 3.3 billion euros to survive

BERLIN, 20 Feb—US carmaker General Motor's (GM) European subsidiary Opel may need more than 3.3 billion euros (4.2 billion US dollars) to maintain its liquidity, a union leader and board member said on Friday.

"Opel's existence is threatened and we need everyone's help to save it," said Armin Schild, a leader of IG Metall, Germany's biggest union and a board member of Opel, according to the report of Bloomberg.

In January, Opel set its rescue package from German government was 1.8 billion euros.

However, as the economic crisis seriously cut the demand for new cars, Opel's needs have intensified. The 3.3 billion euros may be the bottom end of the government aid required by Opel, Schild said, and the company's supervisory board of will meet and discuss it on 27 Feb.—Xinhua

Chilean ship loaded with gold sinks in S Atlantic

BUENOS AIRES, 21 Feb—A Chilean fishing vessel loaded with some seven tons of unrefined gold and silver capsized in a storm in January in Argentine waters of the south Atlantic, the Argentine authorities said on Friday.

Seven crew members and one passenger on the "Polar Mist" were all rescued by two helicopters of the Argentine Army moments before the boat sank on 16 Jan, local daily "La Nacion" reported.

The ship is currently lying on the seabed some 80 to 100 meters deep in the water, sources from the Argentine Navy Police (PNA) told Xinhua.

The ship set sail on 15 Jan, and sent an SOS call one day later when it encountered the storm. A Chilean tugboat had tried to drag it out of Argentine waters, but failed, the PNA said.

The ship was loaded with 6,900 kg of minerals worth of about 110 million US dollars, the "La Nacion" said.

Foreign direct investments in Brazil down 60%

RIO DE JANEIRO, 21 Feb—Foreign direct investments in Brazil totaled 1.9 billion US dollars in January, down 60 percent from the 4.8 billion US dollars registered during the same period last year, the country's Central Bank said on Friday.

According to the bank, the result was well below the expectation of 2.5 billion dollars and was the worst for a January in three years.

The drop showed the effects of the international financial crisis in the country, said Altamir Lopes, head of the bank's economic department.

"It is an effect of the crisis, without a doubt. We already expected a fall in the direct investments flow, but it is still a strong result," he said.

The bank is expecting foreign direct investments to reach 1.8 billion dollars this month.

The bank's forecast for foreign direct investments for 2009 is 30 billion dollars, down 33 percent from 2008, when the figure reached a record high of 45 billion dollars.

Indoor fires linked to lung disease

BEIJING, 21 Feb—Exposure to burning solid fuel indoors for heat and cooking may cause the lung ailment known as chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, a study of more than 20,000 people in China has shown.

The finding, published in the European Respiratory Journal, is significant because COPD has long been associated with smoking and little research has been done to find out why non-smokers also suffer from the disease.

COPD includes chronic bronchitis and emphysema. Emphysema is the loss of elasticity of lung tissues, resulting in the collapse of small airways and leading to shortness of breath and hyperventilation.

The study covered 20,245 people over 40 years of age in seven Chinese provinces who were interviewed about their smoking habits, family health history and exposure to smoke from solid fuels, such as wood, coal and dung. Among the participants, 12,471 were non-smokers and 5.2 percent of them were diagnosed as suffering from COPD, wrote the researchers, led by Ran Pixin at the State Key Laboratory of Respiratory Disease in southern China's Guangzhou City.

Chicago soy futures fall for 8th day on plentiful rainfall in Argentina

CHICAGO, 21 Feb—Soybean futures in Chicago Board of Trade finished lower for the 8th consecutive trading day on Friday, due to rainfall in Argentina crop areas threatened by drought and tumbling stock market. Corn and wheat dropped too.

Corn future for March delivery lost 3 cents, finished at 3.505 US dollars a bushel. March soybean dropped 22 cents to 8.625 dollars per bushel and March wheat was down 0.25 cents, settled on 5.1925 dollars per bushel.

Soybean and corn's weakness stemmed from the arrival of moderate to heavy rains in major growing areas of Argentina on Friday. The rain has been forecasted all week, but the amounts appear to be even heavier than the early predictions.

Lower oil and equity markets also pressured soybean and corn early in the session. The Dow Jones Industrial Average continued to decline sharply on Friday after closing at its lowest level since 2002 on Thursday. Market sentiment over decreased demand for agricultural products as a result of the global economic crisis and US recession continued to weigh on the futures.—Xinhua

Giant step towards democratic transition

Hlaing Aung

The international community says Myanmar has hardly made political progress since 1988. It is because so many issues are deterring Myanmar political reform from making a good headway.

Some members of international community extended a helping hand with goodwill to Myanmar to remedy the issue of political stalemate. Sometimes, the situations became worse due to additional attempts. Some were found anxious to distort the situations on purpose.

In reality, political affairs is somewhat similar to family affairs. While a couple clash with each other, some fuel the situations; some mediate the couple; and some make exacerbation in disguise. Sometimes such a clash grows into a fight, following the unnecessary interference of relatives of both sides. Some make a family clash go from bad to worse through sugar-coated suggestions. When the wife and the husband get into troubles due to their incitement, they, out of joy, spread the bad news from door to door and speak ill of the couple.

That is similar to an issue of a nation. Many alien countries interfere in the internal affairs of the nation concerned. Some manufacture fabricated news and make harsh comments on the issue. It is difficult for some countries that want to help the nation work out the problems it is dealing with.

The United Nations has tried for several years to solve the Myanmar issue. It sent an envoy of the UN Secretary General to the nation to hold a dialogue between the government and the opposition party. It also sent a special rapporteur on human rights so as to improve human rights in Myanmar.

In tackling an issue of a member country, the UN has to abide by many points such as not to interfere accidentally in the issues that are within the purview of the nation concerned; to approach an issue without bias on neither of the quarrelling groups; to help seek means acceptable to both sides; and to ensure that its representative tries to achieve the best result, carrying out the tasks within his purview.

Some persons without any knowledge of these points and those pretending not to understand these points are levelling baseless accusations variously whenever they do not have their wishes fulfilled.

Outside help is like a catalyst that helps two elements react with each other. However much effective a catalyst is, it cannot make two elements react with each other if they do not react with each other. There is a similar process in a political case. The disagreement between two sides can be solved only through mutual understanding, trust, respects, magnanimity and forgiveness.

No man is perfect. There are so many true facts under the sun. All those with attachment deem everything that can fulfil their wishes to be true. If a politician considers politics is just for his self-improvement, as for him all things that can fulfil his wishes are true. If a politician considers politics is for the sake of the human society, as for him all things that can serve the interest of the whole human society and that of his country are true.

To express an independent view, it is believed that the government and the dissidents share the wishes to enable Myanmar to be peaceful and pleasant with development, and to keep abreast of the international community, and to enjoy democracy fully. However, the two sides have different opinions in a bid to materialize the common wishes and achieve the goal. So, I think the two sides are lack of cooperation. The UN is helping reduce the size of the disagreements, so each and every citizen in favour of national interests should welcome such a helping hand.

In helping settle the disputes, all UN envoys and special rapporteurs faced challenges due to unusual situations of Myanmar, and evil consequences of alien instigation and pressure. Every issue is to be worked out, but not in an easy way. What is the most important in this regard is that the two sides and a mediator seek a solution in a pragmatic way to be able to set up a common goal, dealing with good volition, without casting doubts over one another any more and building trust among them. Without any doubt, the correct solution can be sought if priority is given to the interest of all rather than to that of an individual or a particular group.

I simply believe that the nearer the turning point for building the foundation for a democratic nation in 2010, the greater role the UN is playing in the Myanmar issue.

I think, in the recent visit of Mr Gambari, the special adviser of the UN Secretary General yielded positive results to the three sides. The government made arrangements to enable him to meet with those who he wanted to meet. In addition, it complied with the wish of the central executive committee of NLD to meet Daw Aung San Suu Kyi and all then met Mr Gambari together. That indicated the government's goodwill and compliance with the wish of NLD. In response to Mr Gambari's suggestion made during his previous visit, the government gave amnesty to more than 9000 prisoners. Whatever it is, the majority of those released would thank the government and Mr Gambari. NLD embraced a lot of benefits due to the opportunity to disclose its views and stances together to Mr Gambari. Mr Gambari also gained a great benefit because he seized opportunities to study and came to understand the objective conditions of the nation more and more. Moreover, his suggestions have come into shape to some extent. I would say the government's positive responses may be seen as success of the trip.

Similarly, the recent visit of UN special rapporteur on human rights in Myanmar Mr Tomas Ojea Quintana generated satisfactory results. The government made arrangements for him to call at the prisons in Hpa-an and Yangon to study the objective conditions at will. And he got an opportunity to meet with the leaders of the local peace groups and witness the objective conditions in the distant areas concerning human rights. The government's arrangements were very prudent and rewarding, because former rapporteurs met only with expatriate groups and remnant armed insurgents in the border, and they got one-sided views. As the saying 'seeing is believing' goes, in the recent visit, he witnessed the objective conditions of the local people. Besides, he met with the chief justice, the attorney-general, and the minister for Home Affairs who are responsible for protection of human rights, and observed the plans the government is implementing. He also exchanged views with them and made some suggestions. The government showed positive response to his suggestions, and agreed to work together in recognition of his suggestions. They were significant progress. As another result of his visit, 6313 more prisoners were freed.

Anyhow, there might be some persons with self-righteous views who blamed the visits of those representatives, who are reluctant to join hands due to their skepticism, and who wanted to exploit such visits for their political gains. Let me say so because in the political arena there is no examination to test the skills, characters and qualifications of a politician, there are many opportunists who practise politics through the motto 'the harsher comment made on the government, the greater applause'.

Therefore, I would say, those who view conditions with reasoning power realize that recent progress is a giant step towards transition to democracy.

Ex-death row inmate's DNA not found on evidence

NASHVILLE, 21 Feb — DNA from key evidence in a Tennessee woman's slaying does not match the man who spent more than two decades on death row for killing her, according to new FBI lab tests.

Paul House, 47, who uses a wheelchair because he developed multiple sclerosis in prison, was convicted of killing Carolyn Muncey nearly 23 years ago. But the case against him has been in doubt for years because of DNA testing, which wasn't available then.

House was released last year after the US Supreme Court concluded no reasonable juror would have found him guilty based on DNA tests of semen stains on Muncey's clothing. Authorities had claimed he lured Muncey from her dilapidated cabin, beat her, killed her and then dumped her body in a culvert. There were no witnesses.

Three teens fatally shot on Chicago's South Side

CHICAGO, 21 Feb — Three teenagers, including a 13-year-old, were killed on Friday in a shooting on Chicago's South Side that authorities believe involved an assault rifle. It appears "several individuals" attacked the teens, and shell casings found at the scene point to at least one assault rifle, said Police Superintendent Jody Weis.

"It's just tragic, based on the guns that are on the streets, that three young men have lost their lives today," Weis said.

"We're bringing out every resource we have, and we'll work this case as hard as we can," he said.

Officials hope at least two surveillance video cameras near the crime scene will lead to clues, said police Cmdr Eddie Welch, who added that investigators are looking at "multiple scenes."

"They're in great positions," Welch said of the cameras.—Internet

Five killed in Ukrainian cargo plane fire in Egypt

CAIRO, 21 Feb — Five crew members died when a Ukrainian cargo plane crashed during takeoff, burst into flames and slid down the runway on Friday in the popular Egyptian tourist city of Luxor, officials said.

The plane was in the process of lifting off from the tarmac when it "slammed to the ground" and caught on fire, Egypt's Civil Aviation Minister Ahmad Shafiq said in a statement. The plane then slid off the tarmac and came to rest hundreds of yards from the runway where it was consumed in flames, he said.

The cargo plane, which had landed in Luxor to refuel, had a full tank, and this could have contributed to the fire, Shafiq said.

The Russian-made Antonov An-12 cargo plane was traveling from Entebbe, Uganda to Ukraine when it stopped in Luxor, said an Egyptian aviation official who spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to speak to the media.—Internet

Mobile phones aim to be a 'doctor in your pocket'

Not content with offering calls, texts and Internet access, the mobile phone industry is convinced it can help save lives and offer health services to millions worldwide.

The idea of a phone serving as a "doctor in your pocket" has gained traction at the industry's biggest trade show, the Mobile World Congress, in Barcelona. Among a slew of possible applications in poor countries, insiders stressed the potential for the mobile phone to remind people to get vaccinations, take medicine, or undergo HIV tests.

Doctors and nurses working at distance from hospitals or clinics can also use mobile connections to relay information on local patients or report disease outbreaks.

"When you consider that there are 2.2 billion mobile phones in the developing world, 305 million computers but only 11 million hospital beds you can instantly see how mobiles can create effective solutions to address healthcare challenges," said Terry Kramer, strategy director at British operator Vodafone.

The Rockefeller Foundation, the UN Foundation and The Vodafone Foundation announced the Mobile Health (mHealth) Alliance this week, a partnership to advance the use of mobile technology in healthcare.

Man runs out of gas after robbing gas station

Authorities said they arrested a man who apparently forgot to fill up when he was robbing a gas station. The Charlotte County Sheriff's Office said a 23-year-old man used a Bowie knife to rob a Cape Haze gas station. Deputies said the man pulled the 12-inch blade and demanded money. But when he left, a customer followed him and called 911. While deputies were looking for signs of the robber, a newspaper carrier told them that a man in a car matching the one from the robbery had run out of gas nearby.

The man was arrested several hours after the robbery and charged with robbery with a weapon and loitering/prowling. He was released Monday on $10,500 bail.

Answer to budget cuts: stop answering phones

One Colorado county clerk has an unusual response to staff cuts caused by budget shortfalls: Don't answer the phones.

The El Paso County clerk and recorder's office stopped answering telephones in three offices last month. The change was ordered by county clerk Bob Balink, who was forced to lay off 19 staffers late last year.

Balink hasn't commented on the phone shutdown, but the unanswered calls have two other local officials demanding a change.

El Paso's county assessor and county treasurer say the phone boycott is a bad move. They point out that some people don't have Internet access and can't drive to the clerk's office to see a county employee in person. Voice messages on the clerk's phones would refer people to the assessor's and treasurer's phone lines.

EL PASO, 21 Feb—US Border Patrol agents shot a man described as a suspected drug smuggler in the New Mexico desert on Thursday night, federal officials said on Friday.

Singapore barge crew kidnapped in Malacca Straits

KUALA LUMPUR, 21 Feb—Two crew of a Singapore-managed tug and barge have been kidnapped by pirates in the Strait of Malacca, a piracy reporting centre said on Saturday.

The incident occurred on Thursday, said Noel Choong, head of the International Maritime Bureau piracy reporting centre in Kuala Lumpur. He declined to disclose the nationality of the pirates or hostages.

"The pirates came up with guns, they attacked the ship and managed to board the ship and kidnapped two crew," Choong told Reuters by telephone.

The Strait of Malacca between peninsular Malaysia and Indonesia is among the world's busiest shipping lanes, used by more than 70,000 ships in 2007, including vessels supplying about 80 per cent of the energy needs of Japan and China.

Piracy in the Strait became so serious that in 2005 the Joint War Committee of the Lloyd's Market Association added the area to its list of war risk zones, sending premiums sharply higher.

Concerted efforts by Malaysia, Indonesia and Singapore have helped slash the number of attacks.

India says it will oppose US 'protectionism'

NEW DELHI, 21 Feb—India on Friday vowed to oppose any protectionism moves by the United States as part of Washington's efforts to deal with the economic crisis.

"We are already witnessing worrying signs of protectionism in the world's biggest economy. We will need to argue against this trend at the international fora (forums)," external affairs minister Pranab Mukherjee told a labour conference in New Delhi.

Mukherjee, who heads the Indian government's finance portfolio, said his country would also press for trade and aid flows to the developing world. India's economy is "substantially internally driven" and therefore needed to generate greater domestic demand to cushion itself against the "economic turbulence abroad", he remarked.

He also underscored that India needed to look at regional cooperation as a defence against such crises. — Internet

Tajikistan allows NATO cargo transit to Afghanistan

DUSHANBE, 21 Feb—Tajikistan has agreed to allow the transit of NATO non-military cargo through its territory to Afghanistan, a US military commander said on Tajik state television on Friday.

Carnival revellers robbed by hotel gang in Rio

RIO DE JANEIRO, 21 Feb—Police in Rio de Janeiro said they are stepping up security after armed men hit two hotels, robbing 47 tourists in the Brazilian city for its famed Carnival festivities.

Visitors from the United States, Britain, Argentina and other countries were forced to hand over money, pass-

Cosmic stage set for comet Lulin's fly-by

ARIZONA, 21 Feb—A recently discovered comet is making its closest approach to Earth in the next few days and offers anyone with binoculars or a small telescope a chance to see some frozen leftovers of our solar system's making.

Comet Lulin has, as expected, crossed the threshold to naked-eye visibility for people with dark, rural skies. It hovers just inside that envelope of visibility, however, and is not likely visible from cities, where the glare of urban lights can drown out all but the brightest night-sky objects.

"The comet is now naked-eye (if you're out in the country) and is brightening every day as it approaches Earth," said Jack Newton, who has made several photographs of Lulin from his Arizona Sky Village, a residential community committed to pristine natural surroundings and dark skies. "Some feel it will reach maximum brightness on Saturday morning."

NASA has imaged the comet, too, finding that it is shedding into space enough water to fill an Olympic-size swimming pool every 15 minutes, as the sun boils the comet's surface material away. Lulin will be closest to Earth — about 38 million miles, or 160 times farther than the moon — on 24 February.

South African hippo finds happy home in city's sewage plant

JOHANNESBURG, 21 Feb—A young male hippopotamus has made a new home in a sewage plant, South African wildlife officials said on Thursday. The nearly 1,800-pound hippo wandered into Cape Town's Cape Flats Waste Water Treatment plant from an adjacent marsh after a fence was stolen, said Julia Wood, manager of the city's biodiversity programme.

Wood said the 4-year-old hippo, named Zorro because of the zigzag scar on his back caused by his father's tusk during a fight, was "happy" in his new surroundings. He is living in the plant's pans — shallow pools once used to store untreated wastewater but made mostly redundant by new technology. The pans now contain primarily clean water surrounded by grassy areas.

"There are big beautiful pans and lots of grazing," Wood said. Wood said it is believed that Zorro had been on the run from his father, Brutus when he found the gap in the fence. Young bull hippos will often get booted out of their herd after challenging the strongest male. In the wild, the young males move off and begin their own herds.

The sewage plant and the wetlands that surround it are part of the False Bay Coastal Park, one of the many nature reserves in a city famous for its flora and fauna. The wetland area is home to the only six hippos in Cape Town, where they were once numerous. The creatures, which are becoming endangered, were reintroduced 30 years ago.

Galeras volcano erupts

BOGOTA, 21 Feb—Galeras volcano in southern Colombia erupted on Friday for the second time in less than a week, the Colombian Institute of Geology and Mines said, with no victims or damage yet reported.

A forceful eruption began at 07:05 (12:05 GMT), neighbours reported.

The regional alert system was raised to its highest level, the institute said in a statement. It follows a similar eruption late Saturday at the volcano, which is located near the border with Ecuador. That eruption caused no casualties or damage.

The 4 270m Galeras has stirred sporadically in recent years. It erupted in January 2008, causing no casualties, but a 1993 eruption claimed the lives of nine people.

Scientists close in on cure for severe nut allergies

LONDON, 21 Feb—A group of children with severe peanut allergies have had their conditions successfully treated, allowing them to eat nuts without suffering any reaction for the first time. The success of the preliminary clinical trial, conducted by Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge, England, shows the possibility of modifying an allergy by desensitising the sufferer.

Scientists say that the development brings them one step closer to curing nut allergies. Researchers gave small daily doses of peanut flour to children with severe peanut allergy to help them to build tolerance to the nuts over a six-month period. By the end of the trial, the children could eat up to 12 nuts a day without suffering a life-threatening reaction in the form of anaphylaxis.

Peanut allergy is increasingly common. Reactions can range from itching, rashes and swelling to breathing difficulties caused by a narrowing of the airways, and severe asthma. It is the most common serious allergic reaction but, unlike other childhood food allergies, it rarely recedes over time. Andrew Clark, a consultant in paediatric allergy who worked on the trial, said that further studies were planned into different types of nuts, as well as kiwi fruit.—Internet

Two Russian hostages escape Nigerian captors

LOGOS, 21 Feb—Two Russian expatriates kidnapped two months ago by gunmen in the Niger Delta were rescued on Thursday by Nigerian soldiers on routine patrol, a military spokesman said.

Lieutenant-Colonel Sagir Musa said the two Russians had escaped from their captors and wandered in the delta for several days before being spotted by Nigerian troops.

"(They) escaped from a yet to be identified militant camp and for the past five days were wandering in the creeks before our own patrol teams saw and rescued them," Musa said.

Gunmen in speedboats kidnapped the two Russians on December 20. They worked for Nigeria's sole aluminum smelter plant ALSCON in the port town of Ikot Abasi in Akwa Ibom. The firm is owned by the world's largest aluminum producer, Russia's United Company RUSAL.

Hundreds of foreigners have been seized in the Niger Delta since early 2006, most of whom have been released unharmed.

Nigeria's most prominent militant group, the Movement for the Emancipation of the Niger Delta (MEND), last month ended a five-month-old ceasefire and threatened more attacks on the oil sector.

Three cleared over murder of Russian journalist

MOSCOW, 20 Feb—A jury in Moscow on Thursday acquitted three men charged with involvement on the murder of independent journalist Anna Politkovskaya.

The not guilty verdicts followed a two month trial that was hampered from the start by the man accused of masterminding the shooting, Rustam Makhmudov. Sergei Khadzhikurbanov — a former Moscow police officer — and Makhmudov's brothers, Ibragim and Dzhabrail were found not guilty of shooting dead Politkovskaya, a Kremlin critic, outside her Moscow home in October, 2006.

Politkovskaya's death was described by media reports in Russia at the time as a contract-style killing.

A security camera captured a man in a white baseball cap entering the building a few moments before she was shot three times in the chest and once in the head.—Internet

Bomb threats prompt evacuation of two schools in Oregon

SAN FRANCISCO, 21 Feb—Authorities evacuated another school in Oregon on Friday after uncovering a bomb threat, the second case in two days in the US state's Molalla School District, local newspaper reported.

Teachers at Molalla River Middle School found a threat written in one of the school's restrooms, which claimed a bomb was set to go off at a certain time Friday morning. The Oregonian newspaper said in a report on its website. Authorities then called a fire drill to help the school be evacuated in an orderly fashion. Police searched the middle school building but did not find anything.

They believe the threat was unfounded. According to the report, Molalla High School was also evacuated Thursday after a bomb threat was discovered in a restroom. The school remains closed Friday.

The Women's tennis Association fines Dubai Championship organizers $300,000

ST PETERSBURG, 21 Feb—The WTA Tour has fined Dubai Championships organizers a record $300,000 after Israeli tennis player Shahar Peer was denied a visa by the United Arab Emirates.

The WTA also took steps on Friday to compensate Peer and ensure she and other Israeli players won't be shut out of future tournaments in the Emirates.

Organizers said at the time that they feared fan anger over Israel's recent military offensive in the Gaza Strip would spill into riots in the Persian Gulf country if Peer were to play.

Part of the fine will go to Peer and doubles partner Anna-Lena Groenefeld of Germany to make up for the prize money they could have won at the lucrative tournament.—Internet

Zaungtu Multipurpose Dam in service of regional development

Article by Khin Aung Kyaw, Photo by (Kyemon)

The government is building a large number of dams and reservoirs and embankments for the development of agricultural sector, while taking systematic measures for all-round development of the State. As a result, remarkable progress has been made in all the sectors of the State.

Indeed the birth of Zaungtu Multipurpose Dam in Bago Division has contributed significantly to regional and national development. The irrigation facility not only benefits 36,000 of farmlands in Bago Division but also prevents flood water from entering farmlands in Bago Township and its neighbouring regions.

There were no hydroelectric power plants in Bago Division until 1988. At that time, the division had to rely solely on power supply of the national grid and diesel generators. Now, the large-scale hydroelectric power project developed on Zaungtu Multipurpose Dam is now generating 20 megawatts to meet the power demand of the division.

For development of Bago Division Shwekyin, Kunchaung, Phyuhaung, Khabaung and Yenwe multipurpose dams are under implementation. Upon completion, the irrigation facilities will be able to generate 230 megawatts, thereby contributing much towards regional development.

It is sure that the emergence of a cluster of dams and reservoirs and embankments in Bago Division will enhance the socio-economic status of local people all the more.

Smoking Linked To Most Male Cancer Deaths

SCIENCE DAILY, 21 Feb—The association between tobacco smoke and cancer deaths — beyond lung cancer deaths — has been strengthened by a recent study from a UC Davis researcher, suggesting that increased tobacco control efforts could save more lives than previously estimated.
