When we were united our country stood in grandeur

If we look back at the history of Myanmar, we will see that when we were united our country stood in such a grandeur as the First Myanmar Empire, Second Myanmar Empire and Third Myanmar Empire. Therefore when the imperialists were governing the country they fostered disunity to disintegrate our national solidarity.

Build more roads and bridges for development of national economy

According to geographical features, Myanmar is blessed with rivers and creeks mountain ranges, ravines, gorges, plains and hilly regions. And such natural barriers can now be overcome through the might of the government and the people with the emergence of a large number of roads and bridges, thereby enabling one to travel easily from one place to another.

In the past, Ayeyawady Division had to rely solely on waterways. At present, with the emergence of a large number of roads and bridges marked progress has been made in economic, trade and social sectors of the division.

Hailing the 64th Anniversary Armed Forces Day a ceremony to open Ngawun Bridge (Myogwin) in Ingapu Township, Hinthada District, Ayeyawady Division, was held on 21 March. With the birth of the new bridge, vehicles with 60 tons of load can easily run from and to Hinthada, Ingapu, Myanaung, Kyangin and Laymyethna townships.

Making better use of the new bridge, one can have easy access to Pathein through Kwinkauk-Ngathainggyoung-Yekyi road, to An-Sittway through Betye-Okshitpin road and to Monywa through Padan-Kazunma.

Ngawun Bridge (Myogwin) is the 45th of its kind in Ayeyawady Division, and the 220th of its kind in the nation whose length is 180 feet and above.

As Ayeyawady is rich in land and water resources, paddy, green gram, pulses and beans, edible oil crops can thrive in it. In the meantime, fish and prawn breeding and livestock breeding in the division are ongoing and improving.

At a time when the government is engaged in building more roads and bridges for better transport it is incumbent upon the local authorities and the people to try their best for development of national economy.

CARACAS, 23 March—Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez on Sunday called President Barack Obama “ignorant,” saying he has a lot to learn about Latin America.

The socialist leader said he had been ready to name a new ambassador in Washington when Obama took office, but put that on hold after the new US president accused him of “exporting terrorism” and being an obstacle to progress in the region.

“At least one could say, ‘poor ignorant person,’” Chavez said on his weekly television and radio programme, adding that Obama “should read a little bit so that he learns about ... the reality of Latin America.” US National Security Council spokesman Mike Hammer declined to comment on Chavez’s statements.

Chavez’s relations with Washington grew increasingly strained under former President George W Bush. The Venezuelan president expelled the US ambassador and withdrew his envoy from Washington in September. Top diplomats have yet to be restored at either embassy.

Labour is to vote on Tuesday whether to join the government. Netanyahu has also tried to bring in Foreign Minister Tzipi Livni’s Kadima Party.

However, she has declined because he hasn’t stated a commitment to negotiating the establishment of a Palestinian state.—Internet

US Afghan plan must have ‘exit strategy’

WASHINGTON, 23 March— US President Barack Obama said the United States must have an “exit strategy” in Afghanistan even as it expands its military, diplomatic and economic fight against a Taliban insurgency.

“What we’re looking for is a comprehensive strategy,” Obama said in an interview aired Sunday on CBS television’s 60 Minutes show. “There’s got to be an exit strategy,” he said. “There’s got to be a sense that this is not a perpetual drift.” Obama’s comments come as he prepares to roll out a new strategy for Afghanistan, against a backdrop of rising insurgent violence that has questioned the viability of a seven-year-old US-led effort to create a functioning democracy. Obama said a decision last month to send 17,000 more US troops to Afghanistan — largely to head off a spike in violence before elections in August — was the most difficult he has had to make since taking office.

United Nations Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon: Message on World TB Day 24 March 2009

The steps being taken around the world to stop tuberculosis (TB) are having an impact. Today, the epidemic is continuing its decline. But the rate of decline is far too slow, and TB still takes a life every 20 seconds. Millions of people are benefiting from treatment through coordinated national efforts, but millions more are still missing out. Unless we accelerate action, the numbers of those falling ill will continue to grow.

Together, we need to help prevent infection, find all people who are ill far earlier and provide treatment for all. We have a Stop TB Strategy that can do this and a Global Plan to Stop TB that sets the course, but our efforts are falling short.

We must redouble our efforts to fight multidrug-resistant (MDR-TB) and extensively drug-resistant (XDR-TB) forms of TB. We must also continue to fight the TB/HIV co-epidemic.

I welcome the commitment of governments, multilateral organizations, non-governmental organizations, foundations and members of the corporate, academic and research communities working to halt and reverse the spread of the disease and stay on track to achieve the Millennium Development Goals.

In this time of economic crisis, we must protect investments in global health, particularly to protect the most vulnerable. Global cooperation in fighting tuberculosis, and all the Millennium Development Goals, must be essential to our task ahead.

As we look to the future, we need to build and expand our partnerships to deliver the solutions we know work today. We also need to innovate so we can prevent disease, save lives and enable communities to thrive.

Lebanon should be wary of foreign powers, armed groups

BEIRUT, 23 March—Former Lebanese President Amin Gemayel said Sunday that Lebanon should be wary of foreign interventions and domestic armed groups on the road of rehabilitation, local Naharnet website reported.

"Sovereignty can not be completed as long as some want to give a part of it to Iran, Syria or the Palestinians," Gemayel said in a conference gathering his Phalange party leaders in the eastern suburb of Beirut.

Hinting at the Shiite Hezbollah-led opposition, Gemayel said "I dare say we are in a period of rehabilitation."

His remarks came prior to a campaign for the general election scheduled for 7 June in which his son, Sami Gemayel, is running.

Earlier in the day, Sami Gemayel told the Voice of Lebanon radio that there is a party in Lebanon that owns arms other than the Lebanese army and enjoys foreign connections, referring to Hezbollah's armed forces.

Amin Gemayel, a Christian leader from the ruling coalition, served as the country's president from 1982 to 1988.

He lost his parliamentary seat to a candidate from Christian opposition leader Michel Aoun's bloc in 2007.

His another son Pierre Gemayel, then a member of parliament, was assassinated in 2006.

Three-coloured State Flag to be hoisted soon

Dr Shwe Pyi Soe (Myanmarsar Dept, Yangon University)

Yellow colour represents the fact that the State will see the Sasana further flourishing and the education standard of the nation improving significantly.

Green colour represents the fact that crops and grains and cattle will be abundant in the nation.

Red colour arouses the beholders to equip themselves with a sense of bravery.

They are three lines from the song "Illustrated in three colours". Everyone (every scholar), hearing that song, may consider the points representing the three colours.

While I was on duty as a visiting professor at Osaka University in Japan, my good lady Dr Htet Htet (Associate Professor, Myanmarsar Department, Mandalay University) and I, visiting Myanmarsar Professor Dr Tun Aung Kyaw of Tokyo University of Foreign Languages and wife Dr Mya Mya Win together cast votes in favour in advance for the State Constitution (draft) at the Embassy of the Union of Myanmar in Tokyo. I also happened to observe the draft, then.

It was very heartening to witness that Myanmar Ambassador U Hla Myint (Brig-Gen Hla Myint) and the military attaché, and embassy staff doing their bit in the duties for Myanmar citizens then in Japan to be able to cast votes freely and fairly to approve the State Constitution, the lifeblood of the future of the motherland.

I cast vote in advance during my one-day stay in Tokyo. I happened to consider all the chapters of the constitution designed for a prosperous future of the mother country throughout my visit to Japan. We, four of us and some other Myanmar scholars were some time hindered from casting votes in advance by some members of anti-government groups, but we could vote for the constitution in the referendum for democratic transition that will go in the annals of the nation's history.

The thoughts evoked my memories of the expressions of the song "Illustrated in three colours".

Multiparty democracy general elections will be held on a grand scale in Myanmar in 2010.

In the near future, the nation will transform itself into a genuine democratic nation and will be able to hoist the new State Flag with a large white star in the centre with its point directing towards the sky with the yellow, green and red stripes in the background, portraying freedom and justice of the motherland.

The design of the new State Flag can be regarded as an omen of a promising future of the nation. The yellow colour represents light along with brightness and justice. The green colour represents greening, prosperity, freshness and activeness. The red colour represents bravery, enthusiasm, dauntlessness, dynamism and decisive determination. When illustrated in combination, the three colours represent the point of safeguarding independence.

The combination of the three colours — yellow, green and red — illustrated on the State Flag represents an omen of perpetuity of the Union. The large white star illustrated in the heart of the State Flag represents the independent and active foreign policy of the nation. A star also represents leadership. The star is white colour, so it represents the innate nature of sincerity and honesty of Myanmar people. The only star represents the fact that the government will lead all national races steadfastly. The large white star that points straight up on the three colour stripes represents Union Spirit and national solidarity.

Each of the State flags of the world nations must remain in the same position whatever side they are viewed from. They must not turn sideways and must not stand upside down. A State flag must not lose its condition and position even if it is hoisted in any other position.

The new State Flag of the Union of Myanmar that will come into force with the new nation meets all the characters of the State flag of a world country. It can be said that the design of the new State Flag will represent a good omen of development.

Myanmar will see free and fair multiparty democracy general elections to be held in a democratic way in 2010. Every citizen is under the duty to vote with the national concept in the 2010 elections. Now, the Tatmadaw is undertaking the process of democratic transition in compliance with the people's desire to build a modern, developed democratic nation through multiparty democracy general elections according to the State Constitution of the Union of Myanmar that has been approved with the votes of the entire people (nearly cent per cent). As a gesture of honouring the 64th Anniversary Armed Forces Day, I wish the Head of State, senior military officers and servicemen, who are discharging the bounden duty with a sense of duty, a success in serving the national interests, and physical and mental well-being.

And I welcome the new democratic nation with good signs of progress that will come into existence following the general elections in 2010.

Noble hearts

- * In all seriousness
With love and conviction for nation
Tatmadaw sacrifices so many lives
That blood in streams
May form a sea
- * For the country
Tatmadawmen leave behind
Beloved wives, relatives forever
Fallen stars there are
May even fill an ocean to brim
- * National perpetuation
Always in Tatmadaw's mind
Ever place in fore
Our Three Main National Causes
In rooting out enemy
At risk to lives
Sacrificing everything
Nothing can be compared with flowers
Blooming in memory of fallen soldiers

And for the people
Lives the Tatmadaw sacrifices
Comparable to a sea of blood
An ocean-full of fallen stars
And a pile of flowers so high
For the country and community they love
Sacrificing lives and limbs
Honouring them we
For their noble hearts

Oil climbs above $52
in Asia on stock
market rally

KUALA LUMPUR, 23 March—Oil prices rose above $52 a barrel Monday in Asia, boosted by stronger Asian stock markets amid plans by the US government to buy bad assets from banks to contain the financial crisis.

Benchmark crude for May delivery rose 45 cents to $52.52 a barrel by midday in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The contract edged up 3 cents on Friday to settle at $52.07, the first time crude ended the week above $50 since last year.

Dealers said the rally, which was given an extra boost by the US Federal Reserve's decision to buy $1.25 trillion of government bonds and mortgage-backed securities, continued Monday as Asian equity markets rose in anticipation of more good news.

But some cautioned the advance may not be sustainable as global oil demand remains weak.

"Oil pricing is driven by the financial rally. It's questionable whether $50 is the new floor because the fundamental picture for oil has not changed. Demand remains weak in the near term and oil pricing may be vulnerable," said Victor Shum, an energy analyst with consultancy Purvin & Gertz in Singapore.

To get at the heart of the nation's financial crisis, US Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner is set later Monday to detail plans to remove a mountain of toxic assets weighing on banks' balance sheet.

5,000 TB cases occur in Western Pacific every day

MANILA, 23 March—With 5,000 daily infections in the Western Pacific, the regional office of the World Health Organization (WHO) on Monday urged governments to strengthen their national health systems to prevent the further spread of tuberculosis (TB), especially in the wake of multidrug-resistant TB (MDR-TB). In a press release, the WHO said effective TB control has been hampered by weaknesses in health systems, such as chronic staff shortages, inadequate financial resources, poor laboratory capacity, low access to quality care, and flawed links between service providers in the public and private sectors.

WHO said the TB situation in the Western Pacific region is complicated by the spread of multidrug-resistant TB, the patients of which are resistant to at least two of the best anti-TB drugs. It also takes much longer to treat, sometimes as long as two years, and is more expensive than treating ordinary TB. The treatment also causes more severe side-effects, such as liver malfunction and severe gastrointestinal problems, the organization added.—Xinhua

Venezuelan railway project with Chinese technology inaugurated

CARACAS, 23 March—Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez on Sunday inaugurated a railway construction project in central Venezuela that will be built with Chinese technology and funding.

Chavez inaugurated the construction work of the Llanos railway during his Sunday TV-radio programme “Alo, Presidente.”

He said the project was financed by the Chinese-Venezuelan Strategic Fund, which was created on May 2008 to finance projects in energy, agriculture, transport sectors.

The cost of the project will surpass 800 million US dollars, the president said.

The railway of around 470 km long, will connect the towns of Tinaco, El Pao, Ortiz, Chaguaramas and Valle de la Pascua with the state of Anzoategui, northeast Venezuela. Constructed by Chinese and Italian companies, the railway line is part of the national railway system, which includes 15 lines totaling 13,600 km long.

The line is expected to start operation in middle 2012 with the highest train speed of 220 km per hour.

During the televised inauguration, Chavez talked with representatives from the Chinese and Italian companies and told them that the railway will render great help for the country's economic development.

Latin American countries normalize ties with Cuba

HAVANA, 23 March—Latin America has opened a new chapter in its ties with Cuba as Costa Rica reestablished ties and El Salvador intended to resume ties with the country.

Havana and San Jose agreed last week to resume diplomatic relations despite both sides have been caught by political disagreements on a number of issues in recent years.

“Today the world is completely different with what it was in those days,” Costa Rican President Oscar Arias said on Wednesday. San Jose and Havana suspended ties on 9 Sept, 1961.

He said the diplomatic ties with Cuba were broken during the Cold War era, but the world has changed since then and the decision of restoring the ties is justifiable at this moment.

Cuba's Foreign Ministry said the decision is “in accord with its call for integrity and unity with the brotherly people of Latin America and the Caribbean.”

In San Salvador, newly elected President Mauricio Funes said his government intended to restore ties with Cuba.

Both players struggled with the wind, which interfered with their service tosses, stirred up occasional clouds of dust and forced a few rallies to be abandoned as debris was blown across the court.

Japan says pirates fire on ship off Somalia

TOKYO, 23 March—Pirates fired on a Japanese cargo ship off the coast of Somalia and then escaped, the Japanese government said on Monday.

Masami Suekado, a Transportation Ministry official, said no one was injured in the attack, which occurred Sunday.

Suekado said pirates in two small vessels approached the ship and fired several shots before escaping. The ship, Jasmine Ace, was operated by Mitsui OSK Lines.

Atsuko Nakajima, a spokesman for Mitsui OSK Lines, said 18 people — all from the Philippines — were aboard the ship, which was carrying a cargo of automobiles. Bullets broke windows and hit the ceiling of the bridge.

Suekado said the 13,000-ton cargo ship carried out evasive maneuvers and the pirates broke off their attack. The ship was heading toward Mombasa, in Kenya, when it was attacked.
