Oil rises above $53 as investors eye earnings

SINGAPORE, 6 April — Oil prices rose above $53 a barrel Monday in Asia as investors looked to US corporate earnings reports this week for signs of economic recovery that could sustain crude’s two-month rally.

Benchmark crude for May delivery rose 95 cents to $53.46 a barrel by midday in Singapore in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The contract fell 13 cents on Friday to settle at $52.51.

Crude has jumped from below $35 a barrel in February as investor concerns have eased that the ailing US economy would enter a depression and drag the rest of the world with it. Traders will be watching corporate earnings announcements for signs the recession may have bottomed in the first quarter and for company guidance about coming quarters.

Aluminum producer Alcoa Inc is set to kick off first-quarter earnings season on Tuesday.

Still, some traders are skeptical whether oil demand that’s reeling from a global recession can justify much higher crude prices.

“The good feeling is hanging on, but I still think this is a bear-market rally,” said Christoffer Moltke-Leth, head of sales trading for Saxo Capital Markets in Singapore. “I think crude is going to see some pretty firm resistance around $55, then go back down to the low $40s.”

Higher levels of lead may affect older women's brain: study

LOS ANGELES, 6 April — Higher levels of lead in blood or bones may affect the cognitive abilities of old women, a new study showed.

The study, conducted by researchers at the Harvard University's Medical School, drew the conclusion after analyzing lead levels and cognitive scores in almost 600 women from the Boston area.

The findings showed that women aged 47 to 74 who tested positive for lead in their blood (indicating a recent exposure to the metal) or bones (an indication of cumulative exposure over the life span) did somewhat worse on cognitive tests than those who did not show signs of lead exposure.

In the study, the researchers noted that regulatory changes phased out higher lead content in products such as gasoline during the 1980s, so that lead is at a relatively low level nowadays.

So, only those women with lead biomarkers found in their tibia bone, an indication of long-ago exposure, scored poorly enough to be considered statistically significant, according to the study appearing in the April issue of Environmental Health Perspectives.

"Findings in this study are important because of their long-range consequences on the public health of an aging generation," the journal's editor-in-chief, Hugh A. Tilson, said in a journal news release.

"It is not necessary to emphasize what Cuba has always said: We don't fear dialogue with the United States. Nor do we need confrontation to exist, as some fools think," wrote the 82-year-old Castro, who resigned as president when he became ill but still has clout on the island he ran for 49 years.

Dialogue, Castro said, "is the only way of procuring friendship and peace between peoples".

Cultivate Union Spirit

He said he went to the much-damaged villages as a first priority after the cyclone Nargis. Although he himself could not go to the villages with less damage, he arranged everything necessary for emergencies in response to the reports by local authorities concerned. He and the ministers and departmental heads were there to fulfill the requirements of the villages. With a view to building up the Union of Myanmar into a peaceful, modern, developed nation, the government has been implementing the special development region project, national race development project and rural development project so as to ensure the development of all regions of the Union. As the country had been under the divide-and-rule policy of colonialists for many years in the past, national races fought with each other for 40 or 50 years sticking to racism, regionalism and ideologies even in the post-independence period. As a consequence, those regions lagged behind in development. In reality, they have been living in the Union thorough thick and thin for many years despite slight differences in the forms and geographical conditions of their regions. Therefore, it is important for national people to cultivate Union Spirit no matter where they live. They also need to nurture their children to be equipped themselves with Union Spirit. It is necessary to thwart any destructive act leading to the disintegration of the Union with Union Spirit. Then the Prime Minister stressed the need for public cooperation with the government in the success of the 2010 general election.

UN chief slams bombings in Baghdad

UNITED NATIONS, 6 April — UN Secretary-general Ban Ki-moon on Monday strongly condemned a string of deadly bombings that left at least 34 people killed in a marketplace and other locations in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad.

Iran's Bushehr nuclear power plant to generate electricity from mid-summer

TEHERAN, 6 April— Iran's Energy Minister Parviz Fattah said Monday that Iran's Bushehr nuclear power plant will start to generate electricity from midsummer, the official IRNA news agency reported.

"Bushehr nuclear power plant will generate 500 megawatt electricity from mid-summer,"

Fattah was quoted as saying.

The operation of the Bushehr nuclear power plant had been Iranians' old dream, he added.

The country's 1,000-megawatt nuclear power plant originally started in the mid-1970s by Siemens of Germany but was abandoned with the outbreak of the country's 1979 Islamic Revolution.

Iran and Russia, after reaching an agreement on nuclear cooperation in 1992, signed a contract in January 1995 to finish the construction of the plant, the completion of which has been repeatedly delayed.

Arctic sea ice thinnest ever going into spring

WASHINGTON, 6 April — The Arctic is treading on thinner ice than ever before. Researchers say that as spring approaches, more than 90 percent of the sea ice in the Arctic is only one or two years old. That makes it thinner and more vulnerable than ever before, according to researchers with NASA and the National Snow and Ice Data Center in Colorado. That's the type of ice that is more likely to melt in the summer.

Sea ice is important because it reflects sunlight away from Earth. The more it melts, the more heat is absorbed by the ocean, heating up the planet even more. That warming also can change weather patterns worldwide.—Internet

Too much TV increases risk of behavioural problems for kids: study

LOS ANGELES, 6 April — Watching TV for more than two hours a day may increase the likelihood of behavioral problems for kids, a new study showed.

By the time a child is five, those who've regularly watched more than two hours of TV daily are much more likely to exhibit behavioral problems, according to the study conducted by researchers at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

In fact, aggressive behavior was more than doubled in youngsters who regularly watched more than two hours of television daily, said the study published in the April issue of the journal Pediatrics.

The study found that 20 percent of kids from the 2,702 families studied watched more than two hours of TV a day. More than 40 percent of the youngsters had their own TVs in their bedrooms.

When children are watching TV, they're not engaging in other important activities, such as imaginative play. They're also not interacting with others to learn social skills and appropriate ways to resolve conflicts, according to the study.

Afghan teens found living in Rome train station

ROME, 6 April—Twenty-four Afghan children have been found living on the sidewalk of a railway station in the Italian capital and using the space under manhole covers to store the few possessions they had, newspapers reported.

The children, who spoke no Italian, were found by Italian police during an inspection of the city's railway stations and are now being kept at a holding centre. Newspaper reports said they appeared to be between 14 to 16 years in age.

"We want to understand how a thing like this could happen in our city," Rome Mayor Gianni Alemanno said in statement on Sunday after learning of the incident from the papers. Initial reports that said the children slept in the area under manhole covers to keep warm shocked Italians, but police later clarified that the children did not sleep there but probably used the space as storage.

"When we realized they were children, my heart leapt the way it would have for any father of a family that sees 14-year-old children sleeping in that state," rail police chief Carlo Casini was quoted as saying in La Repubblica daily.

Global warming will lead to infrequent rainfall in India

NEW DELHI, 6 April—Major climatic changes due to global warming would lead to disturbed rainfall patterns in India, an eminent environmentalist said Sunday.

"The rise in global warming will lead to major changes in rainfall patterns. In essence rainfall will decrease and become more erratic, said R K Pachauri, chairman of Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change.

According to the noble laureate, global warming is happening at a very steep rate and its implication for South Asian continent means serious water problems for farmers. "A large number of farmers in the continent are dependent on rainfall," he said, while speaking at a memorial lecture organised by Babu Jagjivan Ram Foundation on Climate Change here.

"India will experience heavy rains in a very short time similar to 2005 Mumbai floods which left a million people homeless," Pachauri said, warning that the frequency of such flash floods will increase with time. He cautioned that India will have to face water crisis as shrinking glaciers will lead to reduction in the flow of rivers, which would ultimately result in lower ground water levels. —MNA/PTI

Seven more bodies recovered from North Sea crash

LONDON, 6 April—Police recovered seven more bodies on Sunday from the wreckage of a helicopter that crashed in the North Sea on Wednesday, killing all 16 people on board. Grampian police said one body now remained unrecovered.

The Super Puma helicopter with two crew was ferrying 14 oil workers from a BP offshore oil rig when it went down in fine weather 11 miles off the northeast coast of Scotland on Wednesday afternoon.

It was the second Super Puma crash in the North Sea in six weeks. ## Israeli company advances detection of skin cancer

JERUSALEM, 6 April—An Israeli company has developed an advanced device for early detection of skin cancer, which was found to be far more precise than currently used apparatus, local daily Ha'aretz reported on Monday.

According to the report, the device, developed by Skin Cancer Scanning, is currently undergoing clinical trials at Beilinson Hospital in Petah Tikva. By using fiberoptic cables to scan for potentially malignant moles, the device shows 92 percent effective in identifying certain types of skin cancer.

The new technology works based on the principle that cancerous cells proliferate faster than healthy cells, and their accelerated metabolic activity releases energy at a higher frequency. The device scans for this activity, said the daily.

Yossi Biderman, a director of Skin Cancer Scanning, was quoted as saying that he expects to reach a precision level of 95 percent.

Skin cancer is a malignant growth on the skin which can have many causes. It is currently identified through a two-stage diagnosis — first, suspicious moles are examined by a physician. If the physician believes the patient is at risk, the patient undergoes a biopsy.—Internet

Sherpa sets out to climb Mt Everest for 19th time

KATHMANDU, 6 April—A Sherpa guide who holds the record for most climbs up Mount Everest set off Monday on a new expedition to scale the world's highest mountain for a 19th time.

Appa, who like most Sherpas goes by only one name, flew out of the capital, Kathmandu, with his team on Monday for the small airstrip at Lukla, from where they will trek to "Everest's base camp and spend a few days acclimatizing and preparing for their summit bid in May."

Everest is not easy to climb, but after scaling the summit so many times, I am more confident and experienced," Appa said. "It should not be too difficult but I have to always be careful."

He first climbed the 29,085-foot (8,850-metre) summit in 1989 and has done so almost every year since. His closest rival is fellow Sherpa guide Chhewang Nima, who has made 15 trips. Appa, 48, and his fellow climbers also plan to carry down loads of trash that has accumulated on the snowy slopes and also educate other climbers about the negative impact that human waste has on the mountain.

"We are taking hundreds of bags that can be used to store human waste and carry them down the mountain," Appa told The Associated Press.

Appa said most climbers carry down garbage such as food packages, empty oxygen tanks and rope but leave behind human waste.

Remains of US servicemen repatriated

HANOI, 6 April—A US official in Vietnam says that the apparent remains of three American soldiers killed during the Vietnam War have been sent back to the United States. US official Ron Ward said Monday that the remains were recovered over the past month from sites in central and southern Vietnam. They were flown aboard a military transport plane to Hawaii on Saturday for identification.

Nearly 1,800 US servicemen are still unaccounted for throughout Southeast Asia since the end of the Vietnam War in 1975, when communist North Vietnamese forces overran Saigon, the capital of US-backed South Vietnam. An estimated 58,000 Americans and 3 million Vietnamese were killed in the war. Washington established diplomatic ties with Hanoi in 1995.

Indian archaeologists find 3000 year-old furnace, utensils

NEW DELHI, 6 April—Indian archaeologists have discovered a 3000 year-old furnace and other utensils, in Daulatpur, near historic town of Kurukshetra in north India, the local Hindi language daily Danik Bhaskar reported on Sunday.

Scientists believe that the site must have been a factory for making utensils. Some utensils found are baked while others are semi-baked. This kind of furnace has been discovered in the country for the first time. Besides, a cooking furnace has also been discovered.

The discovery came through when Sri Krishan

Museum's archaeologist Rajendra Singh and his team stumbled upon these areas while searching for articles of historic importance for an exhibition in the area. The picking of mud for filling purposes by locals had brought up the signs of furnace below.

In an earlier excavation effort 35 year ago, some articles had been discovered at the site, but the current discovery has established the presence of definite civilizations around Kurikshetra some 3000 years ago, said the report, quoting scientists working on the project.

Japan's imported auto sales down 26.8% in March

Tokyo, 6 April—Imported vehicles sold in Japan plunged 26.8 percent year-on-year in March to 23,218 units as the global economic recession took a heavy toll on the world's second largest economy, the Japan Automobile Importers Association said on Monday.

It was the 11th consecutive monthly fall in sales of imported motor vehicles, including those of Japanese brands manufactured abroad, said the trade body.

Foreign-brand vehicles sold in Japan sank 26.7 percent to 20,820 units while sales of Japanese-brand vehicles dived 27.6 percent to 2,398 units, it said.

In terms of manufacturers, Volkswagen ranked No1 with sales of 5,311 units and a market share of 22.9 percent, followed by Mercedes-Benz and BMW with sales of 4,223 units and 3,444 units, respectively.

Ferguson rounds on Liverpool after Villa thriller

MANCHESTER, 6 April—Sir Alex Ferguson resumed his mind games with Liverpool boss Rafael Benitez after Manchester United's dramatic 3-2 win over Aston Villa enabled his side to reclaim the leadership of the Premier League.

Ferguson still has an opportunity to collect five trophies this season now that United have one a point lead at the top of the table with a marvellous morale boost ahead of Tuesday's Champions League quarter-final first leg against Porto. But the United manager is more interested in stirring up trouble for his closest challengers for the Premier League title, in response to Benitez's query over whether United can handle the pressure after Liverpool beat Fulham on Saturday.

Ferguson has turned the heat back onto Benitez and, in a deliberate move to intensify further the rivalry between Liverpool and Chelsea ahead of their Champions League quarter-final on Wednesday, has claimed that two-legged affair is also a contest to determine who will challenge United for the title. Liverpool are still viewed as the leading contenders but Ferguson encouraged Chelsea, four points off top spot having, in common with Benitez's men, played one more game than United.

"Everyone is screaming that Liverpool are our challenge," Ferguson said. "But I think whoever wins between Liverpool and Chelsea in the Champions League will be our biggest threat because of the effect it will have on them." It is an emotional fixture. There are never a lot of goals and it's very, very tight and whoever wins that will take a big step forward."

Pizarro hits Bremen hat-trick, Wolfsburg on top

BERLIN, 6 April—Striker Claudio Pizarro hit a hat-trick on Sunday as Werder Bremen hammered Hanover 4-1, but the biggest Bundesliga shock of the weekend saw Bayern Munich crash 5-1 to new leaders Wolfsburg.

Ex-Chelsea forward Pizarro has now scored 15 goals and he is the fourth highest goal-scorer in the league behind leader Grafite from Wolfsburg who has netted 20 times.

"It was great to get the hat-trick," said Pizarro, who was asked if he can match Grafite. "I don't know about that, but why not? I will certainly try."

Hanover's Germany goalkeeper Robert Enke had kept his team in the game when he saved midfielder Diego's second-half penalty with the scores level on 1-1.

Mourinho calms title talk despite nine-point lead

ROME, 6 April—A disastrous own goal from Mauricio Isla handed Inter Milan a 1-0 victory at Udinese on Sunday and a nine-point lead atop Serie A.

Second-placed Juventus's hopes suffered a huge blow as a Sergio Pellissier hat-trick earned Chievo a 3-3 draw in a thrilling match in Turin. But Inter coach Jose Mourinho, whose team face Juventus in two weeks' time in what could be a title decider, insists the race is not over with eight games still to play.

"We know that nine points with eight matches left is a big lead," said Mourinho. "We're more comfortable and there's a little bit more pressure on Juve." Of course they're not happy because they've dropped two points at home. We didn't win the title tonight, we know that we need 15 points more which means five wins, which we should be able to achieve."

Murray beats Djokovic to win Miami Masters title

MIAMI, 6 April—Andy Murray beat Serbia's Novak Djokovic 6-2, 7-5 to win the Miami Masters and clinch his third title of the year.

The world number four wrapped up victory after reeling off the last five games of the second set having seen Djokovic, the world number three, throw away his chance to level the final. The Serbian, the champion here in 2007, had served for the second set leading 5-3, but a fifth double fault disrupted his fightback and his game quickly fell apart.

Murray, the first three-time winner on the ATP Tour in 2009, also made further inroads on Djokovic's world number three ranking with only 170 points now separating them. The 21-year-old Scot dominated Djokovic for most of the match as the Serbian fell prey to a total of 43 unforced errors. Djokovic called for the trainer early in the second set and Murray's level subsequently dipped slightly, although the Scot said it wasn't necessarily due to any distraction.

Marseille grab second spot behind Lyon

PARIS, 6 April—Two goals from Mamadou Niang and one from Brazilian Brandao in the final half hour gave Marseille a 3-0 victory at St Etienne and propelled them into second spot in the French league, just one point behind Lyon.

Niang's first came on 60 minutes when his penalty kick wrongfooted St Etienne keeper Jeremie Janot and then 12 minutes later Brandao headed home after good work

Valencia eye Europe as rivals stumble

BARCELONA, 6 April—Valencia set their sights on a top-four Spanish League finish, and a Champions League spot, on Sunday after brushing aside struggling Getafe 4-1.

They are now just two points off fourth-placed Villarreal thanks to two penalties by David Villa in either half and strikes from Juan Mata and Raul Albiol. Getafe's goal also came from a spot-kick with Francisco Casquero converting at the start of the second half, but they were never able to cause any sustained danger to Valencia's makeshift defence missing Carlos Marchena and Alexis Ruano.

"We still have a long way to go in order to make up for the points that we have dropped this season and so two wins does not make everything okay," said Valencia coach Unai Emery. "But we are satisfied with the game though and we need to keep going." It has been a good weekend for Valencia with all the teams around them losing ground in the battle for European places. Atletico Madrid's inconsistency continued as they crashed to a 4-2 defeat at the hands of Osasuna.—Internet

Moyes still chasing Champions League spot

LIVERPOOL, 6 April—David Moyes believes Everton can still achieve a Champions League place next season and break the stranglehold of Manchester United, Liverpool, Chelsea and Arsenal.

Everton romped to their best win of the season on Sunday, a 4-0 home victory against Wigan, but they remain in sixth place in the Premier League table, seven points behind fourth-placed Arsenal.

"The Champions League is still there for us, we are not going to give up," said Everton boss Moyes. "Arsenal have got the points and are coming into form with players back from injury. We are not going to give up, but realistically it will be a tough call to catch them now."

"It was a good performance, a good result and another clean sheet. I was pleased with much of what I saw. The hardest thing is to get your players going again after internationals, you never know how they are. They have all had a couple of games and a lot of travel, but they have every right to be tired.—Internet

China to promote book reading among children, young people

BEIJING, 6 April—China's central government wants people to get lost—in a good book.

A series of activities aimed at increasing the time people spend reading great literature gets underway this month. The programme will include discount book offers, book report contests, book donation drives and the construction of new libraries throughout the country, according to the government's publicity department and the General Administration of Press and Publication.

The programme is specifically targeting children, teens, women, migrants and farmers. Meantime, schools, community centres, trade unions and corporations are being encouraged to form book clubs, share reading lists and sponsor guest speakers.

The initiative will end in October.

Statistics show China's book purchase and reading rate has declined in recent years. In 2008, the book purchase rate was less than two books per family while the book reading rate was 35 percent—14 percent lower than the 2005 figure. And although China's literacy rate has shown steady improvement through the decades, in 2005 it was 91-and-a-half percent. The Ministry of Education hopes to increase that figure to 98 percent by 2010.

Butterfly wings can be both to mates and predators

BUFFALO, 6 April — Butterflies seem able to both attract mates and ward off predators using different sides of their wings, according to new research by Yale University biologists.

Trying to find the balance between these two crucial behaviors is one of nature's oldest dilemmas, according to Jeffrey Oliver, a postdoctoral associate in Yale's Department of Ecology and Evolutionary Biology and lead author on the study, which appears online in the journal Proceedings of the Royal Society B: Biological Sciences.—Internet

BERLIN, 6 April — It fits on a fingertip: Noblella pygmaea is a midget frog, the smallest ever found in the Andes and among the smallest amphibians in the world. Only its croaking was to be heard from the leaves on the mossier ground of the "elfin forests" in the highlands of Manu National Park, before German and Peruvian herpetologists discovered the tiny little thing in south-eastern Peru.

The popular name of the new species is fitting: Noble's Pygmy Frog has an average length of 11.4 millimeters. —Internet
