Heated debate on 2013-2014 FY National Plan Bill goes on

NAY PYI TAW, 14 Feb—“Laws should not be just for show,” says Daw Mi Myint Than of Ye Constituency, calling for translation of the government’s doctrine “good governance, clean government” into actions.

She stressed agricultural loans should be reached to farmers and not into the pockets of those who misuse power and suggested adding the word “the sufficient amount of” between “to provide” and “agricultural loans to farmers” in the proposed agricultural plan on 2013-2014 FY Bill.

The heated debate over 2013-2014 FY National Plan Bill went on at the ninth-day sixth regular session of the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw today as the parliamentarians put forward large numbers of recommendations.

Daw Nan Wah Nu of Kunhing Constituency questioned the credibility of commitment made at the Parliament, criticizing the Electric Power Ministry for failing to build a power station in Kunhing Township which was promised to establish nearly two years ago.

Daw Nan Wah Nu portrayed red-tape as a reason for illegal trade, a threat to national income. “Despite the virtual instability, timber extraction and minerals mining have never ceased in the region,” she said.

Daw Dwe Bu of Ingyanyan Constituency called for pragmatism in policy-making, stressing the need for operability on the ground.

She welcomed the Information Ministry’s plan to extend parliamentary news and ethnic communities TV channels, suggesting establishing FM stations in rural areas so that people are in touch with functions of the parliament.

Industrial wastewater pollute Mandalay and its vicinity

MANDALAY, 14 Feb — Due to the irresponsible dumping of wastewater from factories in Mandalay Industrial Zone and the surrounding areas, there has been a high risk of water pollution in Taungtaman Lake and its surroundings in Amarapura Township causing deteriorating of ecosystem. Because of south and north natural lake regions subject to water pollution, the Ayeyawady is under the threat of water pollution when the polluted water from the lakes has reached the River via Dohtawady River. According to zoologists and scholars in chemistry, the death of fish occurred due to the impact of dumping wastewater in Taungtaman Lake.

In order to reduce levels of environmental pollution in Mandalay, an agreement between officials of Mandalay City Development Committee and industrialists was reached on 1 February to formulate a wastewater treatment system as soon as possible and to launch punitive actions against reckless dumping of wastewater from factories.

There are 90 factories dumping wastewater in the municipal area of Mandalay. Factories are to carry out their own wastewater treatment system until MCDC operates its wastewater treatment system in the middle of the year 2013.

CARACAS, 14 Feb — Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez is undergoing “complex” alternative treatments more than two months after having cancer surgery in Cuba, his vice president said on Wednesday.

The 58-year-old socialist leader has not been seen in public since he went to Havana for the operation on 11 December, his fourth surgery for cancer in 18 months.

Vice President Nicolas Maduro did not give details of the alternative treatments the president was receiving. Chavez has never said what type of cancer he is suffering from, and critics accuse the government of excessive secrecy over his condition.

“Today our commander is undergoing alternative treatments ... they are complex and difficult treatments that must, at some point, end the cycle of his illness,” Maduro said in comments on state TV.

The government, which rejects allegations it has not been transparent about Chavez’s health, says he has completed a difficult post-operative period and has started a “new phase” of his recuperation. It has not given details of this new phase.

Any new vote in South America’s top oil exporter would probably pit Maduro, Chavez’s heir apparent, against Henrique Capriles, the 40-year-old governor of Miranda state, who lost to Chavez in last October’s presidential election.

Ecuadorian presidential candidates near end of campaigns

QUITO, 14 Feb—Ecuador’s eight presidential candidates marked the next to last day of their campaigns on Wednesday, with incumbent President Rafael Correa firmly in the lead.

The campaign season officially ends midnight Thursday, after giving the presidential hopefuls and legislative candidates 42 days to drum up support and criticize rivals.

Correa, who was granted a 30-day leave from the nation’s top office to hit the campaign trail, appeared at several events in the coastal provinces of Manabi, Los Rios and Guayas, and led a caravan in Guayaquil, capital of economically-important Guayas Province.

Correa, in power since 2007, is set to end his campaign in the capital Quito, with a massive rally at the headquarters of the ruling PAIS Alliance Party.

Correa’s immediate rival, but not a threat, is former banker and center-right candidate Guillermo Lasso.

The latest polls showed Correa enjoyed the support of 66 percent of the country’s 11.6 million eligible voters, an advantage of more than 40 points over Lasso, who trails behind with 15 percent support.

Syrian troops bombard rebel posts around capital

AMMAN, 14 Feb—President Bashar al-Assad’s forces bombarded the southeast of Damascus with air strikes and artillery on Wednesday to try and dislodge rebel fighters who have gained a foothold in the Syrian capital, opposition activists said.

A Middle East diplomat following the military situation described battles in and around Damascus as a “major engagement”, with fighting going back and forth between the two sides.

“The opposition is hitting Damascus from a multiple of directions and the regime is trying to stop it,” he said.

Jets bombed Jobar, a neighbourhood adjacent to the main Abbasid Square, and the suburb of Daraya on the highway to Jordan to the south, sources in the capital said.

The two areas are part of interconnected Sunni Muslim districts in and around Damascus that have been at the forefront of the 22-month uprising against four decades of family rule by Assad and his father.

Rebels entered Jobar last week after breaching the army’s defence lines at the ring road and overrunning several army and pro-Assad militia positions in the district.

The road, a supply line for elite army units dug in in the center of the city, separates the capital from the mostly rebel-held expanse of Sunni towns and suburbs known as eastern Ghouta.

“By being all over Jobar, the rebels are at striking distance in Damascus, but the big question is whether they will be able to hold it,” said an opposition activist from the Damascus Media Centre opposition monitoring group.—Reuters

John Kerry pledges to restart Mideast peace process

WASHINGTON, 14 Feb—US Secretary of State John Kerry pledged on Wednesday to explore “every possibility” of restarting the peace process between the Israelis and the Palestinians, but insisted on listening to regional leaders first.

“We are committed, as I’ve said to Minister Judeh and to others, to explore every possibility,” the top American envoy told reporters after meeting with Jordanian Foreign Minister Nasser Judeh at the State Department.

“And I believe that there are possibilities,” he added. “I’m an optimist.

If I weren’t an optimist, I wouldn’t have taken this job.”

However, President Barack Obama, who started his second term barely one month ago, is not prepared to do more than to listen to the parties at the moment, Kerry noted.

The president is scheduled to visit Israel, the West Bank and Jordan next month. “It affords him an opportunity to listen,” Kerry said. The secretary himself made a number of phone calls to foreign dignitaries soon after taking office on 1 February, including Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas. Kerry said the two leaders both agreed that there are things that could be done to reopen the stalemated peace process.

“The window is closing on this possibility,” he said. “All the leaders I’ve talked to in the region have brought this topic up as a prime topic, and so it deserves our utmost consideration, and it will get that.”

“I think we start out by listening and get a sense of what the current state of possibilities are and then begin to make some choices,” he added.—Xinhua

Iran continues installation of new uranium enrichment centrifuges

TEHRAN, 14 Feb—Iran is continuing the installation of new uranium enrichment centrifuges at the central Natanz facility, said Head of Atomic Energy Organization of Iran (AEOI) Fereidoon Abbasi on Wednesday, semi-official Fars news agency reported.

The remarks came after experts of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) and Iran started a new round of talks in Iran’s capital of Tehran on Wednesday with hopes to resolve the differences between the UN nuclear watchdog and Iran over the latter’s disputed nuclear programme.

The installation started one month ago, and according to the schedule, the Islamic republic intends to double the number of centrifuges in Natanz, according to Abbasi.

Teheran Times quoted an IAEA report as saying that the number of Iran’s first-generation IR1 centrifuges at Natanz site amounted to 10,500 at the end of last year.

The Iranian nuclear chief added that new centrifuges will be used for generating enriched uranium below five percent and will not be used for producing 20 percent enriched uranium.

On 30 January, Iran informed the IAEA of the installation of its new uranium enrichment centrifuges in Natanz.

Pakistan asks Taleban to announce 30-day cease-fire for talks

ISLAMABAD, 14 Feb— Pakistani Interior Minister, Rehman Malik on Wednesday asked the Taleban militants to declare a 30-day cease-fire if they want dialogue with the government, local media reported.

It was the first formal government’s response to the Taleban dialogue offer. Taleban’s attacks have killed nearly 40,000 people including security forces, in the past 10 years.

“The government is ready to hold dialogue with Taleban provided they announce cease-fire and appoint some sincere religious scholars to achieve purposeful results,” Malik told reporters in Islamabad.

“If Taleban are sincere in holding talks, they should have announced a cease-fire and formed a Jirga (council of elders), comprising some serious and thoughtful people,” he said. Taleban have not yet responded to the government’s fresh proposal however they had previously rejected similar calls.

The Interior Minister said Taleban should know that people of Pakistan have seen their actual face and the nation would not forgive the crimes of killing of innocent citizens.

“The nation has rejected Talebanization. Taleban should announce cease-fire first to hold talks,” he said.—Xinhua

Tycoons Slim, Gates open Mexico agricultural research centre

TEXCOCO, 14 Feb — Carlos Slim and Bill Gates, the two richest men on the planet, inaugurated a new agricultural research centre outside Mexico's capital, touting the millions they have donated to bolster global food security. The two tycoons participated in a ribbon-cutting ceremony for new laboratories at the headquarters of the International Maize and Wheat Improvement Centre, known by its Spanish acronym CIMMYT.

The new complex will double the centre's capacity to develop better seeds and more productive farmers in the developing world, officials said. "These laboratories will help attract the best talent in the world to come and work here," said Gates, founder of Microsoft and co-chair of the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation. Slim's charitable foundation donated $25 million to build the new complex, while the Gates foundation has given more than $90 million for ongoing CIMMYT projects, including an $18 million grant also announced on Wednesday to help boost small-farm yields in South Asia.

"We have climate change but we also have significant volatility in raw materials, and that makes improved efficiency and farm productivity indispensable," said Slim, who controls a business empire that includes Latin America's biggest telecommunications company, America Movil. Mexico's agriculture minister, Enrique Martinez, told the assembled dignitaries that new advances in seeds developed by CIMMYT will help Mexico lessen its reliance on imported grains, especially corn.

Mexico currently imports about a third of the corn it needs each year. More than two years ago, Mexico's government began pumping resources into CIMMYT's sustainable agriculture programme known as MasAgro — $49 million since 2011, and another $138 million pledged over the next decade, according to data from the agriculture ministry. —Reuters

No "Plan B" for Microsoft's mobile ambitions

SEATTLE, 14 Feb — Microsoft Corp has not made much of a dent in Apple Inc's and Google Inc's domination of mobile computing, but a top executive hinted on Wednesday that it will not stop trying and does not have an alternative strategy. ter Klein said at the annual Goldman Sachs Technology and Internet Conference in San Francisco, which was webcast.

Given Microsoft's lack of success so far, he was asked if there was an alternative strategy or 'Plan B' in reserve. "It's less 'Plan B' than how you execute on the current plan," said Klein. "We aim to evolve this generation of Windows to make sure we have the right set of experiences at the right price points for all customers."

Microsoft now has two versions of its own brand Surface tablet for sale and released its newest Windows phone software last year. But the company has not made big inroads into either market.

Gartner estimates that Microsoft sold fewer than 900,000 Surface tablets in the fourth quarter, which is a fraction of the 23 million iPads sold by Apple. Microsoft has not released its own figures but has not disputed Gartner's.

Windows phones now account for 3 percent of the global smartphone market, Gartner says, which is almost double their share a year ago but way behind Google's Android with 70 percent and Apple with 21 percent.

To grab more share, Klein said Microsoft was working with hardware makers to make sure Windows software is available on devices ranging from phones to tablets to larger all-in-one PCs. —Reuters

Europol breaks up multi-million euro Internet fraud gang

MADRID, 14 Feb — A network of online fraudsters who masqueraded as European crime-fighting agency Europol and collected millions of euros in fake fines has been broken up — by Europol. The group, which worked across 30 countries over the past two years, paralyzed computers with a virus and left messages purporting to be from organizations like Europol and the police, saying users could only regain access to their machines if they paid a fine.

"It's impossible to know for sure how many citizens were affected by this, but we estimate hundreds of thousands of Europeans were," Europol Director Rob Wainwright said at a news conference in Madrid on Wednesday. "If we take into account that the average fine was 100 euros ($130) and 3 percent...paid it, then the estimated damage is millions of euros," he said. Wainwright added his own name had been used to trick Internet users.

The virus was known as "Ransomware" and had up to 48 different mutations to overcome anti-virus software. The leader of the fraud network, a 27-year-old Russian citizen, was arrested in December in the United Arab Emirates, Spain's secretary of state for security, Francisco Martinez, said at the news conference.

Adobe reviews report of another security bug in its software

BOSTON, 14 Feb — Adobe Systems Inc is investigating a report by a cybersecurity firm that hackers exploited previously unknown bugs in its Reader and Acrobat software to launch sophisticated attacks on personal computers.

FireEye, a Silicon Valley company that helps businesses fight cyber attacks, told Reuters it obtained so-called PDF files tainted with malicious software, which can take advantage of the newly discovered bugs. It declined to identify any victims of the attacks.

A spokeswoman for Adobe said that the company is investigating the report, which surfaced late on Tuesday. She declined to elaborate. This has been a busy year so far for Adobe's security team.

In January, the company pushed out security updates to fix vulnerabilities in Reader, Acrobat and Flash, as well as a program known as ColdFusion that is used to build websites. Last week, it rushed out a fix for Flash Player after security software maker Kaspersky Lab identified a critical bug that enabled hackers to install "back doors" and take control of PCs running on Microsoft Corp's Windows operating system or Apple Inc's Mac OS X.

Adobe's software has long been a popular target for hackers, who attack PCs by finding bugs in widely used programmes that they can then exploit to insert viruses on computers.

Experts estimate that Reader and Acrobat programmes for accessing PDF documents and Flash Player for accessing Internet content are installed on more than 1 billion PCs. Hackers exploiting the most recently discovered vulnerability use PDF files to infect PCs, according to FireEye.

Electric cars still prohibitively expensive for New Zealand market

WELLINGTON, 14 Feb—Energy-efficient hybrid electric vehicles will only become competitive in the New Zealand car market in about seven years, an electrical engineering expert said on Thursday. Electric vehicles were still too expensive for New Zealand, but the country could benefit substantially from them in terms of reduced greenhouse gas emissions and reduced air pollution, University of Canterbury researcher Dr Allan Miller said at the national energy conference in Wellington.

"The price of an electric vehicle is largely determined by the cost of the battery system. Until this cost is reduced by improved technology and increased manufacturing volumes, they will remain prohibitively expensive," Miller said, according to a statement from the university. "The key tipping point at which the battery cost per kilowatt-hour drops below an affordable level is expected to occur around 2020. This will result in these vehicles reaching near price-parity with standard vehicles and consequently increasing market volume."

to 6,000 registered hybrids made up just 0.2 percent of the New Zealand fleet last year. Even if the balance tipped in favour of electric vehicles now, at the current rate, it could take 50 to 100 years to replace the 2.6 million private vehicles currently in New Zealand, he said. LG says OLED TV pre-orders top 100, eyes 15 percent rise in 2013 TV sales

SEOUL, 14 Feb—LG Electronics Inc said on Thursday pre-orders for its 55-inch next-generation televisions costing over $10,000 have topped 100, and the firm will start selling the TVs on Monday in South Korea as it tries to steal a march on rivals.

Aiming to outdo competitor Samsung Electronics Co and burnish its reputation for TV technology, the world's No 2 TV manufacturer started taking pre-orders for organic light-emitting diode (OLED) TVs some six weeks ago. Tipped as the technology most likely to replace liquid-crystal display (LCD) TVs, LG's OLED model costs up to five times more than LCD equivalents due to flat-screen production challenges.

Samsung has yet to announce when it will start production of OLED

TVs. Given the high price, the new technology is unlikely to sharply boost profit margins, but LG hopes an early move to OLED will help it revive its sinking profitability at a time when Japanese rivals are benefiting from a weakening yen. December-quarter profits in LG's TV division tumbled to around one tenth of year-earlier levels, as it bumped up promotional spending in the year-end holiday season.

LG said it was aiming to raise flat-panel TV shipments by 15 percent this year. OLED technology is more energy-efficient and offers higher contrast images than LCD, and is so thin that future mobile devices will be foldable like paper.

OLED displays are already used on Samsung's popular Galaxy S and Note smartphones, but panel makers have yet to address manufacturing challenges to lower costs to compete against LCD panels, particularly for large screens for televisions and computer monitors.

Global mobile phone sales decline in 2012: research

SAN FRANCISCO, 14 Feb—Market research firm Gartner said in its latest research on Wednesday that worldwide mobile phone sales declined in 2012 for the first time since 2009. "Tough economic conditions, shifting consumer preferences and intense market competition weakened the worldwide mobile phone market this year," said Anshul Gupta, principal research analyst at Gartner.

According to the research, with smartphones continuing to drive overall sales, worldwide mobile phone sales to end users totaled 1.75 billion units in 2012, a 1.7 percent decline from 2011. Demand for feature phones remained weak in 2012 and was down by 19.3 percent year-on-year in the fourth quarter of 2012, said the research. It is expected to keep falling in 2013. But in the fourth quarter of 2012, smartphone sales rose by 38.3 percent compared to the same period the previous year.

Gartner predicted that overall mobile phone sales to end users would reach 1.9 billion units in 2013 with smartphone sales accounting for almost 1 billion units. Among smartphone vendors, Apple and Samsung together raised their worldwide smartphone market share to 52 percent in the fourth quarter of 2012 from 46.4 percent in the third quarter.

Samsung claimed the No 1 position in both worldwide smartphone sales and overall mobile phone sales in 2012.

Meanwhile, China's Huawei reached the No 3 spot in global smartphone sales for the first time. Garner said international markets are key for Huawei's growth in 2013, and the company would be able to improve its product mix to a higher tier. The research predicted that 2013 would be the rise of the third ecosystem as the battle between the new BlackBerry 10 and Windows Phone intensifies.—Xinhua

Hyper-parents can make college aged children depressed

LONDON, 14 Feb—Turbo-charged parents still running their university-aged children's schedules, laundry and vacations could be doing more harm than good with a study on Wednesday showing these students were more likely to be depressed and dissatisfied with life. Researcher Holly Schiffrin from the University of Mary Washington in Virginia found so-called helicopter parenting negatively affected college students by undermining their need to feel autonomous and competent.

Her study found students with over-controlling parents were more likely to be depressed and less satisfied with their lives while the number of hyper-parents was increasing with economic fears fuelling concerns over youngsters' chances of success. "You expect parents with younger kids to be very involved but the problem is that these children are old enough to look after themselves and their parents are not backing off," Schiffrin, an associate professor of psychology, told Reuters. "To find parents so closely involved with their college lives, contacting their tutors and running their schedules, is something new and on the increase. It does not allow independence and the chance to learn from mistakes."

Schiffrin's study, published in Springer's Journal of Child and Family Studies, was based on an online survey of 297 US undergraduate students in which students described their mothers' parenting behavior and their own autonomy and researchers assessed their happiness and satisfaction levels.—Reuters

Britain reports to WHO another confirmed case of new coronavirus infection

GENEVA, 14 Feb—Another British resident, relative of the previous case, was confirmed to be infected with the novel coronavirus, the World Health Organization (WHO) said on Wednesday. The latest confirmed case didn't have any recent travel history outside Britain, which indicates that infection was acquired in the country, the WHO said in a statement.

"Although this case is suggestive of person-to-person transmission, on the basis of current evidence, the risk of sustained person-to-person transmission appears to be very low," it said. The WHO said that this patient has pre-existing medical conditions that may have increased susceptibility to respiratory infections.

Britain's Health

Protection Agency (HPA) is following up on all close contacts, including family and healthcare workers, who may have been exposed to either of these two new confirmed cases, according to the WHO. As of Wednesday, a total of 11 confirmed cases of human infection with the new coronavirus have been notified to WHO and the death toll, which is five, has not changed since April 2012.

Turkey adds pressure on EU to crack down on terrorist networks

ANKARA, 14 Feb—Turkey has ratcheted up pressure on the European Union (EU) member countries to crack down on long-running terrorist networks that are operating in their territory with impunity. Ankara alleges that the EU has for years turned a blind eye to the activities of terror groups that target Turkish citizens and interests using the logistical support and funds garnered in the EU soil. For the last two weeks, the outspoken Turkish Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan has not let up his intense criticisms of the EU for failing to take the necessary measures to prevent the outlawed Kurdish Workers' Party (PKK) and far-left Revolutionary People's Liberation Party/Front (DHKP/C) from operating on their territory.

Both PKK and DHKP/C were listed as terrorist organizations by Turkey, the EU, and the United States.

"The government has recently launched talks with the jailed leader of the PKK in order to pave a way for the disarmament of the group. It does not want any renegade faction in Europe to derail the process," political analyst Idris Gursay told Xinhua.

"Since the PKK front organizations commands huge financial network in Europe, the government fears that some may not be interested in laying down the arms or give up huge money business. By putting pressure on the EU, Erdogan wants action on PKK finances in Europe," he said. Erdogan's strategy may have worked well as Spanish and French authorities have arrested 23 alleged members of the PKK on charges of extortion to raise money for the terrorist organization. German authorities have filed charges this week against a PKK suspect who was the former head of financial affairs for the illicit group.—Xinhua

US Treasury Secretary nominee warns of gov't spending cuts

WASHINGTON, 14 Feb—US Treasury Secretary nominee Jacob Lew on Wednesday warned of the harms to be caused by the looming government spending cuts scheduled to kick in on 1 March.

"We cannot allow the series of harmful automatic spending cuts known as the sequester to go into effect on 1 March. These cuts would impose self-inflicted wounds to the recovery and put far too many jobs and businesses at risk," according to his prepared testimony before the Senate Finance Committee.

Roughly 85 billion US dollars of spending cuts were set to hit various US governmental departments this year starting on 1 March, as agreed by Democrats and Republicans in January to resolve the so-called "fiscal cliff."

"As we move forward with deficit reduction, we need to make sure we leave sufficient room for critical investments in education, research, and infrastructure that we need for our economy to grow and compete globally," he argued at the committee hearing on his nomination.

"Our top priority is to strengthen the recovery by fostering private sector job creation and economic growth at a time when we must make sure our economy remains resilient to headwinds from beyond our shores," he contended.

That means making it easier to sell US goods abroad and expand manufacturing in the United States. It means working with US partners around the globe and through organizations like the Group of Twenty (G20) to bolster the international financial system and promote global economic stability, he said.

"It means moving forward on the work to complete financial reform so that the system is less vulnerable to crisis, with greater protections for investors and consumers. And it means reforming the tax system so American businesses can thrive and remain competitive," Lew noted.

UN Security Council extends peacebuilding mandate in Burundi

UNITED NATIONS, 14 Feb—The UN Security Council on Wednesday unanimously adopted a resolution to extend the mandate of the UN peacebuilding office in Burundi, known as BNUB, for one year until 15 Feb, 2014.

The 15-nation council welcomed "the continued progress that Burundi has made towards peace, stability and development," said the resolution.

The resolution called for continuing efforts to support the government of Burundi, including strengthening the legal frameworks of the country, protecting human rights, as well as promoting the socio-economic development of women and youth and conflict-affected populations.

Strengthening institutions may be key to these goals, it said, as the 15-member council encouraged renewed "efforts to pursue structural reforms aimed at improving political, economic and administrative governance and tackling corruption, with a view to setting up strong drivers for sustained and equitable social and economic growth."

The council also "calls upon the government of Burundi to foster inclusive elections in 2015 by continuing to improve dialogue between all national actors, including civil society, and to guarantee a space for all political parties," said the resolution.

The peacebuilding office in Burundi was originally established in 2006, to consolidate peace efforts in a country that has been plagued by decades of factional fighting between the Hutus and Tutsis.

Prolonged armed fighting between different factions has created severe problems of poverty, arms proliferation and tensions that threaten regional stability.

The council therefore called on "the government of Burundi to pursue its efforts of peace consolidation and reconstruction in a regional perspective, especially through projects fostering peace" with intergovernmental bodies like the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region (ICGLR).

Keep our fine tradition

Every country in the world has their own traditions and customs. Myanmar has long been in existence with her own cultures and literature since many centuries. Myanmar with a population of 60 million, which is home to 135 national races, has a rich history of religion, literature, culture and dress. Today is the age of globalization. With the rapid development of IT, cultures from other countries are penetrating into our country through media. Thanks to the media, we can know the latest events in the world immediately.

Nowadays, no country in the world is possible to close their country's doors. We must open the doors to get enough oxygen and light. Opening doors brings the good and the bad things to the country. Due to cultural imperialism, the tradition and cultures of countries in the world are disappearing. We must be well aware of it. Some people's bad behaviors could tarnish the images of Myanmar culture.

These days, it is not a strange thing to see young ladies enjoying beer together with men. It is not a Myanmar tradition. And, some young girls' dress style is a real eyesore. Other countries' dresses would not be suitable for Myanmar weather condition. We should imitate the good things only from other countries.

Due to the recent changes, the country is more likely to receive a flood of tourists soon. So, foreign visitors could have assumed that behaviors to be a Myanmar tradition and looked down on us. Thus, we must show what our tradition is and keep in our minds that we are Myanmar. We should act the word like "Think Globally, Act Locally".

The 66th Anniversary Union Day celebration-2013 was held in Nay Pyi Taw on 12 February on a grand scale. The responsible persons of Peace Groups attended the celebration together with national race delegates to the Union Day for the very first time. Peace-making process is taking good shape in the time of the new government. The ceasefire agreements had been reached with 10 out of 11 national race armed groups. A ray of peace is member Pado Mahn Nyein Maung who took part in the rally at the hotel he stayed when he was in Nay Pyi Taw to attend the 66th Anniversary Union Day celebration.

Q: Let me know how the ceremony was organized.

Under the leadership of Pantanaw Township Literature and Culture Committee, the ceremony was held on 11 February. The township committee chairman Mahn Thein Hla the ceremony. While asking permission for organizing the ceremony, Union Minister U Aung Min willingly allowed us to hold the ceremony. The Ayeyawady Region Government and local authorities not only gave permission for the ceremony but also provided necessary assistance.

Q: Who encouraged the people to hold the ceremony?

There was no one who encouraged the people to hold the ceremony. People us and then we will follow it.

The mass rally gave the government and peacemakers a great strength. A flock of challenges are ahead on our way to a lasting peace. We believed that the Union government will be able to handle the challenges joining hands in hands with the national race groups. I looked with pride at Pantanaw when the township in the Ayeyawady delta region participated in six-district mass rally in support of peace talks in 1963 together with Thayawady, Minhla, Insein, Pyay and Toungoo.

Q: What are the other items included in the agenda?

On behalf of the Region Chief Minister, Region Minister for Finance and Revenue U Win Ko Ko addressed the ceremony. The proposal in support of the peace-making process being implemented by the Union government and Karen National Union was submitted and sought the approval of the people.

Q: What is your view on holding the ceremony?

It will be a push for peace-making process if the entire people hold the ceremonies the far and wide of the nation so did in Pantanaw.

Q: Let me know the KNU's steps in the peace-making process.

We signed a ceasefire agreement on 12 January 2012. Talks are in progress to be able to draw a lasting peace. As for me, I have met the President for two times. Q: What did you say in your address?

We had seen a more than 60-year-old armed conflict in the country. Never in all my life have I seen such kind of successful negotiation. Nation races have been treated with respect and as equals in the time of the new government led by the President. All national races are granted recognition. Today's negotiations were held without preconditions. We were able to open the peace door and this was a first step towards a lasting peace. We are trying to dispel suspicions that existed on both sides. I accepted that there are many people who are suspicious of our peace-making process. Only the negotiation is the best way to bring a lasting peace for the country. We chose this way as it can guarantee the country to see the minimum losses, at the very least. Russia denies supplying Syria with Iskander missiles

MOSCOW, 14 Feb—Russia has never supplied Syria with Iskander, a tactic missile system, or other offensive weapons, head of Russia's military exporting corporation said on Wednesday.

Russia had only delivered to Syria ground-to-air systems while Iskander is an advanced ground-to-ground first-strike complex with a range of 500 km, said Isaikin, adding Moscow sustained military-technical cooperation with the war-torn country because Damascus had not yet been under the UN Security Council's sanctions.

"We are continuing to fulfill our obligations on contracts for the delivery of military hardware," the Interfax news agency quoted him as saying, citing Syria ranked 12th or 13th place among the clients of Russian arms trade.

Isaikin also denied that Russia was planning to supply MiG-29M fighters to Damascus while confirming that it had a deal for Yak-130 training planes.

IAEA experts arrive in Iran for new round of talks on nuclear deal

TEHRAN, 14 Feb—Experts of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) arrived in Teheran on Wednesday morning, hoping to resolve the differences between the UN nuclear watchdog and Iran over the latter's disputed nuclear programme.

On Tuesday, before leaving the Vienna airport, Herman Nackaerts, IAEA's deputy director general for safeguards, said "this time we will try to work hard to resolve the differences."

The agency's goal "is to finalize the structured approach document," said Nackaerts.

The IAEA and Iran

met twice last December and in January to finalize a deal over the nuclear programme, but they failed to reach any agreement.

On Tuesday, head of Atomic Energy Organization of Iran (AEOI) Feridoun Abbasi said that it is necessary for the negotiations to be conducted "rationally" and to avoid disputable points so that ambiguities could be settled.

Also, Iran's Foreign Ministry spokesman Ramin Mehmanparast on Tuesday said that his country is prepared to address the IAEA's concerns over certain aspects of the country's nuclear activities provided that Iran's nuclear rights on the basis of the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty (NPT) directives are recognized.

Iran and the West are locked in a bitter dispute over the former's nuclear activities, with the latter accusing Teheran of developing nuclear weapon under the cover of peaceful purpose, a charge Iran has consistently denied.

Iran has insisted that its rights to peaceful nuclear activities, and above all the right to uranium enrichment should be recognized by the IAEA and world powers.

S Africa to host BRICS investor conference ahead of summit

JOHANNESBURG, 14 Feb—The South African government will host the first BRICS-EXPO and International Trade and Tourism Conference later this month ahead of the fifth BRICS summit.

With the theme of "Pioneering business and investment opportunities between the BRIC countries and North West province", the four-day conference will kick off on 21 February at the Mmabatho Convention Centre in Mahikeng, the North West Province.

North West Premier Thandi Modise, who is organizing the event on behalf of Pretoria, said the conference is aimed at creating a platform for the public and private sector to explore business opportunities with international businesses from BRICS (Brazil, Russia, India, China and South Africa).

"One of the provincial priorities is to increase investment inflows into the province. Engagements with investors will afford us with opportunities to learn best practices in manufacturing, renewal energy, mining, mineral beneficiation, tourism, infrastructure development and agriculture beneficiation projects," she said in a statement.

The North West Province is the mainstay of South Africa economy because of mining activities which generates more than half of the province's gross domestic production and provides jobs for a quarter of its workforce.

According to Modise, besides positioning South Africa's North West Province as a preferred investment destination, the province has prioritized the development of key economic sectors to contribute towards job creation and increase contribution to the province's GDP.

She said the province is looking forward to engagement and discussion with BRIC partners to further strengthen and solidify close ties in trade, tourism and investment.

US oil dips on easing tension between Iran and IAEA

NEW YORK, 14 Feb—US crude oil price dipped on Wednesday as crude inventories in the world's largest oil consumer increased, and Iran and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) had reportedly agreed on "some points" during talks in Teheran. "In addition to removing some differences and agreeing on some points in the text...the two sides decided to review and exchange views about the new proposals that were given in this meeting, in the next meeting," said Ali Asghar Soltanieh, Iran's envoy to IAEA, media reported.

US crude inventories rose by 560,000 barrels in the week ending 8 February, the International Energy Agency (IEA) said on Wednesday in its weekly report.

Meanwhile, average daily production for crude oil in the United States was more than 7 million barrels in January, a multi-year high, according to the IEA monthly report on Wednesday. Besides, IEA cut its outlook for global oil demand growth by 90,000 barrels per day, also dragging on oil prices. On the economic front, US retail sales rose 0.1 percent in January, compared with an increase of 0.5 percent in the prior month, as payroll taxes hikes imposed negative influences to consumers' purchasing will, Commerce Department figures showed on Tuesday.

Two chairs found on elevated rail tracks in Singapore

SINGAPORE, 14 Feb—Two chairs were found last month on a segment of elevated rail tracks in Singapore during pre-operation checks by the staff of a subway system operator, local daily The Straits Times reported on Thursday.

The chairs were promptly removed after they were found on 13 January, but train services operator SMRT later put up notices warning residents against the haphazard disposal of foreign objects onto the tracks, which could “impede operations” and “disrupt services.”

A police report has been lodged over the latest incident. SMRT said its findings indicate that the chairs were thrown from nearby blocks.

The company said it has encountered 14 cases of foreign objects landing on the Bukit Panjang LRT line since 2004.

“Most objects are small items like clothes and slippers. Depending on the type of object found on our tracks, delays to service could range from a few minutes to even longer,” a spokesperson was quoted as saying.

“The object can damage equipment on the track, or under the train carriage if a train runs over it,” she said.

In 2007, a youth was placed on two years’ probation for tossing tubes of silicon sealant onto the track, causing an eight-minute disruption and 4,100 Singapore dollars (3,306 US dollars) in damage.

A lawmaker said the issue is a matter of civic consciousness. “We need to appeal to residents to stop these inconsiderate acts that put people’s lives in danger,” he said. “Whether it’s a disgruntled resident or someone playing a prank, it’s about being considerate.”—Xinhua

MANILA, 14 Feb—The Government of the Lao People’s Democratic Republic has extended 30,000 US dollars in financial assistance for the victims of typhoon Bopha (local name Pablo) which wrought havoc to southern Philippines last December, the Department of Foreign Affairs

(DFA) said on Wednesday.

Philippine Ambassador to Laos Maria Lumen Isleta received the check from Lao Deputy Foreign Minister Bounkeut Sangomsak at a ceremony held at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Vientiane recently, the department said.

Sangsomsak expressed the sympathies and condolences of the Lao Government and people to those affected by the large-scale devastation caused by the natural disaster. He also said that Laos shared the pain and suffering of the Philippines and hoped that nature would spare the country from future major calamities.

Isleta conveyed deep appreciation for Laos’ generous gesture and support during this difficult time.

Meanwhile, the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) is appealing for more than 1.3 billion pesos (31.94 million US dollars) in additional funding to help Bopha survivors.

According to Alain Aeschlimann, ICRC’s head of operations for East Asia, South-East Asia and the Pacific, the additional funding will be used to provide food, tarpaulins, mosquito nets, cooking utensils, and hygiene items to 300,000 people who lost everything during the typhoon.

He added that the ICRC will help in repairing damaged water supply systems and health facilities, and restoring livelihoods through cash-for-work programmes and distributing free seedlings and farming tools to the typhoon survivors.—Xinhua

Actor Steve Martin is first-time dad at age 67

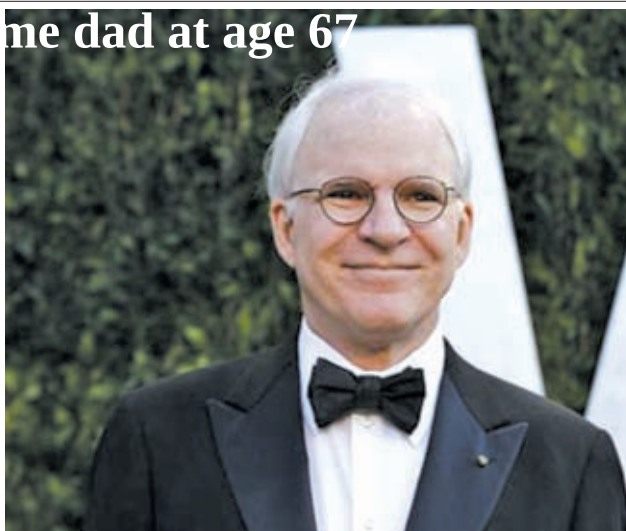

LOS ANGELES, 14 Feb— Actor, writer and comedian Steve Martin has become a dad for the first time at age 67—and managed to keep it secret from the media for more than a month. Martin and his second wife, Anne Stringfield, 41, “are new parents and recently welcomed a child,” a spokeswoman for the actor said on Wednesday.

The spokeswoman gave no details, including the sex of the child or the date of birth. But the New York Post cited unidentified sources as saying the baby arrived in December. The multi-talented Martin, whose career as a writer and performer dates back more than 45 years, has played a father in movies such as “Parenthood,” “Cheaper by the Dozen,” and “Father of the Bride.”

Martin, who has hosted the Oscars ceremony three times, married Stringfield, a former writer at the New Yorker magazine, in 2007. His eight-year marriage to British actress Victoria Tennant ended in divorce in 1994.

- * Support to the grievance handling system in line with standards established by the DRD project secretariat.

During its first year of operation, the Project will begin operations in one township each in Chin State, Shan State and Thanintharyi Region. While the township selection is being undertaken, DRD now invites eligible consulting firms or NGOs ("Consultants") to indicate their interest in providing the Services. Interested Consultants should provide information demonstrating that they have the required qualifications and relevant experience to perform the Services in one or several of these townships. PACIFIC PALISADES, 14 Feb — Phil Mickelson ranks Riviera Country Club as one of his favourite venues on the PGA Tour, even though it took him almost a decade to discover the art of playing the par-71 layout. Unheralded Nuggets playing with chip on their shoulders

TORONTO, 14 Feb — The Denver Nuggets are happy flying under the radar, but a lack of attention despite an impressive campaign has given them added motivation to make noise in a competitive Western Conference. Before Sunday's overtime loss to the Boston Celtics, Denver owned the NBA's longest active winning streak with nine straight victories in which they topped the 100-point plateau in each.

Despite their longest win streak in nearly eight years which lifted them to second place in the Northwest, the Nuggets remain overlooked as talk about who will represent the Western Conference in June's NBA Finals centres around the San Antonio Spurs, Oklahoma City Thunder and Los Angeles Clippers. "We like to be under the radar. We like being made to feel like we are an underdog and people look down upon us," Denver coach George Karl told reporters before his team's 109-108 road loss to the Toronto Raptors on Tuesday.

The Nuggets (33-20) have gone 1-1 in games against each of the three Western Conference favorites this season and have the fifth best record in the 15-team Western Conference with a balanced attack powered by Italian forward Danilo Gallinari and speedy guard Ty Lawson. Entering Tuesday's game, Denver had six players averaging double figures, something the Spurs (five), Thunder (four) and Clippers (four) could not say.

"There's a lot of good teams out there, the San Antonio Spurs and so forth have a lot of depth, but we feel like we have depth and can compete with those teams," said Denver center Kosta Koufas.—Reuters

SAO PAULO, 14 Feb — Former world No 1 Rafael Nadal will face Brazilian qualifier Joao Souza in his opening singles match at the Brazil Open on Thursday. At the time of the injury the 140th-ranked Brazilian led the Spaniard 7-6 (8-6) and 30-0 in the first game of the second set.

Nadal, who earned a first-round singles bye, progressed to the second round of the doubles event with David Nalbandian on Tuesday with a 6-3, 3-6, 11-9 victory over Pablo Andujar and Guillermo Garcia Lopez. The Brazil Open is Nadal's second tournament since returning from a seven-month layoff due to a knee injury. He won the event in his only previous appearance in Brazil as an 18-year-old in 2005.

Cardinals running back James banned four games for doping

Arizona Cardinals running back Javaris James

NEW YORK, 14 Feb — Arizona Cardinals running back Javaris James has been suspended four games for violating the league's policy on substance abuse, the National Football League (NFL) said on Wednesday. James, who spent the 2012 NFL season with Arizona on injured reserve after suffering a knee injury during the pre-season, has not played a regular season game since 2010 when he was with the Indianapolis Colts.

If he makes a roster for next season James, the cousin of former NFL standout Edgerrin James, would serve his ban for the first four games of the 2013 campaign. James was released by the Colts after he was arrested for marijuana possession in 2011 and made stops with the New England Patriots and Washington Redskins before joining Arizona. — Reuters

China-LatAm relations expected to enter new phase

SANTIAGO, 14 Feb — The next Chinese government to be in place in March will usher in a new phase in China-Latin America relations, an Latin American official told Xinhua on Wednesday.

At the latest summit of the Community of Latin American and Caribbean States (CELAC) in Santiago, leaders of the member states ordered their foreign ministers to work toward the establishment of a CELAC-China cooperation forum, said Osvaldo Rosales, director of International Trade and Integration at the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean (ECLAC).

The installation of the new Chinese government will coincide with CELAC's new focus to seek permanent dialogue with China, especially around the cooperation agenda proposed by Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao during his visit to Latin America in 2012, Rosales said.

The ECLAC official said there are political will and strategic needs from both sides to build direct dialogue. He believed that 2013 will be a very active year for bilateral exchange.

This June, Chinese and Latin American agriculture ministers will meet in Beijing, which was one of Wen's proposals, he said, adding that ECLAC has organized regional talks to prepare an agenda for the meeting.

He said Latin America offers multiple investment opportunities and a very dynamic market.

Finland's Kekalainen becomes NHL's first European GM

Finnish manager Jarmo Kekalainen attends a news conference in Helsinki on 13 Feb, 2013. — REUTERS

NEW YORK, 14 Feb — Finland's Jarmo Kekalainen became the National Hockey League's (NHL) first European general manager when the Columbus Blue Jackets entrusted him to run the struggling franchise on Wednesday. Kekalainen, who has been the president and general manager of Jokerit in the Finnish Elite League since 2010, was named to the position a day after Columbus fired Scott Howson.

"Hockey is a truly global game and there are very few people whose knowledge of the game in North America and abroad surpasses that of Jarmo Kekalainen," John Davidson, the Blue Jackets' director of hockey operations, said in a statement. "He is intelligent, hard-working and a tremendous evaluator of talent. He is a terrific addition to the Blue Jackets family and will play an important role in our efforts to move our organization forward in the coming years."

Kekalainen, who spent eight seasons with the NHL's St Louis Blues from 2002-10 where he was involved in all facets of hockey operations, takes over a Columbus team that has not made the playoffs since 2009 and finished last overall in 2012. Prior to working for the Blues, Kekalainen spent eight years with the Ottawa Senators as their top European scout and later as director of player personnel. He also played three seasons in the NHL with the Boston Bruins and Senators.

Columbus fired Howson after a 4-7-2 start to the current campaign left them in last place in the Western Conference's Central division, 13 points behind the first place Chicago Blackhawks.

"We have a great challenge before us, but I am confident through hard work, organization and commitment that we will achieve our goal of building a Stanley Cup contending team," Kekalainen said in a statement.

Until Kekalainen's immigration status is settled, assistant general manager Chris MacFarland will accompany the team on its upcoming six-game road trip, which starts Friday in Los Angeles. — Reuters

Afghan president, ISAF welcome US forces pullout

KABUL, 14 Feb — Afghan President Hamid Karzai and NATO-led International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) welcomed the US President Barack Obama's decision over withdrawal of another 34,000 American forces from Afghanistan.

"Afghanistan welcomes the announcement by President Obama, who in his state of the union address said that the US would be pulling out another 34,000 troops over the next year from Afghanistan," said a statement posted on Karzai's website on Thursday.

In his State of Union address on Tuesday night, Obama announced that 34,000 US forces will be repatriated home from Afghanistan over the next year. Currently there are about 100,000 NATO-led ISAF forces, with nearly 66,000 of them Americans, stationed in the country. Under Obama's withdrawal plan, 33,000 US forces pulled out of the country in September last year.

"This spring, our forces will move into a support role, while Afghan security forces take the lead," Obama was quoted in the statement as saying

"This is something Afghanistan has wanted for so long now. The withdrawal in spring of foreign forces from Afghan villages will definitely help in ensuring peace and full security in Afghanistan," the statement noted.

Meantime, the NATO-led ISAF also hailed the decision, saying the announcement is consistent with the strategy agreed upon by US and coalition partners and the Afghan government at the Lisbon Summit in 2010, and is evidence of that strategy's success. — Xinhua

Shwe Yanpyay Kyaungdaw in Nyaungshwe Township attracts flock of globetrotters

Most of globetrotters who thronged into Nyaungshwe Township in Shan State (South) visit Shwe Yanpyay Atumashi Shwe Kyaungdaw situated at the entrance to the town first before flocking to Inlay Lake.

Township was built and donated by Nyaungshwe Chieftain Sao Ohn and Maha Dewi and local people on 5th Waning of Nayon 1251 ME.

The building supported by 167 wooden posts is 85 feet long and 55 feet wide. The outer posts are mosaic ones designed to resist impacts of bad weather. The multi-tiered-roofed building is a magnificent one with oval-shaped windows.

stand in at the bottom of East Mingala stairs at the north side of the building which was roofed with sawn teak under CI sheets. The teak posts and ceiling are decorated with mosaics. Altars where Buddha Images are being kept and thrones are also decorated with mosaics. So the building with ancient cultural works attracts a flock of tourists.

I have grasped a chance to conduct an interview with a tour guide of the 20-member German tourist group there. He said that globetrotters were very happy to study ancient cultural works and to photograph novices reciting Buddhist literatures.
